EDITORIAL

Recently I went to see the new film, "MARS ATTACKS", by Director Tim Burton. I found this to be a great piece of entertainment in many ways, including the fact that we get to see the Houses Of Parliament blown up - a scene so lacking in Independence Day. Obviously being a British director Tim just couldn't leave this scene out! Also I enjoyed an obvious dig at the American Freemasons by using their Pyramid with an all seeing eye as a emblem of the invading aliens. A nice touch of humour. If you are careful you may spot a mutilated cow being dragged in the distance by an alien, on board a spacecraft.

I was very interested to see that photographs of the Roswell Footage cameraman have been released on the internet.

I have recently been to the Czech Republic on a UFO lecture visit and also to investigate UFO report cases in this country. I was interested to see great parallels between their reports of UFO and abductions and ours - a important factor considering the Czech people have not had access to much, if any, UFO literature or TV on the subjects. Reports of my finding will appear in the next issue of Truthseekers. My trip is the reason that this edition is late.

Colin Ridyard brings us the latest news on the previously missing but now "found" document regarding P&SS and Rudloe Manor (and their involvement with investigating UFOs). Colin has now involved his local MP in the fight for information. It seems like UFO research will probably go more political this year with the run up to the Roswell 50th Anniversary celebrations.

There is a flavour of magic and occult in the air this month with two special articles on the subject - an interview with a very sincere gentleman named Ales Cesal, who I met whilst on my trip in Czech - the other article is about symbology and magic. These two items fit together quite well I think.

Malcolm Robinson has been doing his impression of Rob Roy and stomping all over the skeptics and tell us all about it in his article "Ufology Proves It's Point".

In keeping with a wider view on conspiracies we have a feature on a secret US spy base in the UK which seems to be beyond all normal parliamentary oversight. What could be so secret that it is above parliament we have to ask? We speak to the activists who are bringing this fascinating news item to the worlds attention.

Jonathan Hurst brings us into the very strange world of abductees and contactees. He reports on his fiancée Jan's experiences and tries to make sense of the messages that both he and her are given by the "Reticulan" aliens.

In an interview with Tim Casady I get to hear about apparent wide scale hoaxing and trickery in presentation of the Hopi Indian prophecies. A worrying tale considering the amount of attention these prophecies are given in the UFO magazines and media.

Lastly there is a scathing and twisted write up on me - the editor of this magazine. I have put it in so people can comment and give me feedback on the work I do -else send your criticisms for the author who attacked my work and experiences.

GCHQ UFO

Workers at Britain's biggest spybase GCHQ, in Cheltenham, were baffled by the sighting of a UFO in the sky above it. Employees at GCHQ watched amazed as two bright lights flew at break neck speed over the base in complete silence at 4.30 yesterday morning.

Two security guards reported seeing the lights. "We are close to the Fairford airbase used by the USAF so it is possible that the lights could have been something from there." A statement from GCQH said.

TOP BRITISH ADMIRAL WARNS OF "SATANIC" UFOs

[This story appeared in the London Times on February 28, written by Ruth Gledhill, Religion Correspondent. CNI News thanks Errol Bruce Knapp and Rebecca Keith for forwarding this to us.]

A former head of the [British] Armed Forces has helped to form a pressure group to warn of the satanic nature of many unidentified flying objects. Admiral of the Fleet Lord Hill-Norton, Chief of Defence Staff, 1971-73, is involved with UFO Concern out of worry that some UFO encounters are "definitely antithetical to orthodox Christian belief", according to today's Church Times.

The Rev Paul Inglesby, a sub-deacon in an Orthodox church, who is secretary of UFO Concern, said the truth about UFOs has been suppressed for many years. He had never seen a UFO himself but knew many who had. "It is what they do and the messages that come from them that are anti-Christian, or demonic," he added.

Gordon Creighton, a Buddhist who edits Flying Saucer Review, said the group's founders were right to be concerned: "I do believe that the great bulk of these phenomena are what is called satanic."

However, David Wilkinson, a Methodist minister and an astrophysicist whose "Alone In The Universe" was published this month, told Church Times that Christians had nothing to fear from alien life forms.

Lord Hill-Norton, 82, confirmed last night that he had helped to found UFO Concern, but declined further comment.

SANTILLI FOOTAGE UPDATE

Recently a videotaped interview with somebody who claimed to be the cameraman, took place. The video was reportedly shot by the cameraman's own son on a non-professional camcorder. However, due to an apparent mistake in lighting, the cameraman's plan to obscure his own face failed. Though the son did turn this tape over to Santilli, he requested that it not be shown unless the face and the voice could be suitably disguised.

Despite the cameraman's wishes, Ray Santilli soon decided to sell the unaltered video to a Japanese television network. The Japanese aired the footage in Japan in December, 1996. Soon, copies of that broadcast arrived in the United States. CNI News (Web/Internet based news service) acquired a copy in early February. Though the video quality was poor, the cameraman's face was visible and his voice was clear.

Lindemann: As you know, CNI News is now determined to do everything possible to discover the identity of this man. Not only are we posting still images and a short video clip of the cameraman on this website, but we have also created an interactive area so that people who may have information on this man's identity or whereabouts can enter that information in the new database we've built for this purpose. We will then compile and distribute information from this database to key researchers, of course including yourself. For the benefit of all visitors to this web site, especially potential eyewitness contributors to our search, would you please explain your own view of, and involvement in, this effort?

Kiviat: Since I'm in pre-production on a potential new UFO special for FOX, it's very important to view this as a possible element in the show. If we can close this thing out during pre-production, we'll cover how this web site and this project led to a closure. This is the first time that anyone has shown the footage to the American public through some media outlet. People need to see this face and see if they know who this person is. This is a big step, in my opinion, because the Internet is going to become a major source for cooperation between television shows like mine and the viewing public. This project at the CNI News site is a great beginning -- I can't stress that enough -- to get information out to the public and to help close some of these nagging issues in one of the greatest mysteries of perhaps the last 25 years. It's time to close this out now.

We want daily reports on anything that comes in. Eventually, this may well be where the story breaks. So we respect what you're doing at CNI News. We respect the direction you're going and we would like to help in every way we can to find this individual and to cover that on our show.

CALL FOR UFO INVESTIGATION

Strange unidentified objects have been spotted over Anglesey to such a degree that the islanders have now written to parliament asking MPs to set up a commission to investigate the strange and unexplained phenomenon. Earlier this week (21st March 97) the petition from the islanders of Ynys Mon, who are used to regular flights overhead from training jets at RAF Valley, was published in the House Of Commons daily order paper.

Comment from Colin Ridyard, a North Wales UFO investigator is that there has been a steady stream of sightings in the area and this has culminated in the recent wish for an investigation. Colin, who is interested in political pressure, says that he will be trying to get other groups of people to lobby their MPs for action in their areas in the hope that this may cause movement in the MOD for a proper investigation or release of information. 23 March 97

ISP RAIDED BY POLICE

The ultimate Internet horror finally happened - in Vienna. On Thursday the Vienna Internet provider VIP was raided by state police and the justice system for alleged child-porno distribution. All his equipment was taken by the police to check if and how porno-material was distributed by his server. The provider VIP and the owner Peter Wlcek complained that 10,000 files and more are handled each day and it's not his job to check each file. He has 2500 customers and companies on his server who are cut off from the net without any warning. The damage could be gigantic. Worse still, the Austrian government has no real proof of it, because the order to seize the equipment and cut off the provider came from state lawyers in Munich, GERMANY (!)

NOTE: We are not confronted with local state terror any more, now we are hit by international state terror. And soon world wide terror. Don't let them get away with that: A German to be able to seize equipment in any country in the world. This action happened within 10 Days (!!!)

Only one of the 2500 customers had porno-pictures stored on the VIP server, the Germans said. One of 2500 did something wrong (maybe) and 2499 other pay the bill. The law system and the totally gone mad German government makes this crazy thing possible.

And what is even more crazy in this mad justice system in Austria, there is no legal way possible to complain against this confiscation of equipment.

Worse still, this could happen again and in every country once the Germans have found a way to stop unwanted information on the Internet. Porno is only the camouflage for a total information control on the Net.

MOD CHANGE UFO REPORTING POLICY

In a radical change to the MOD policy on UFO reporting, a new telephone answering line has been installed at the Airstaff 2a (The UFO reporting section) which now states the following:

"You have reached the Ministry of Defence Secretariat of Airstaff. You may use this voicemail facility to make reports of unusual aerial observations which you wish to draw to the attention of the MOD. However, the departments interest is confined only to establishing whether there is evidence of unauthorised military activity in UK airspace. On this basis if you wish to register a report please leave your name address and telephone number after the tone, giving brief details of what you have seen. Please remember to include the date time and precise location. You will be contacted further only in the event that we consider that any follow up is required. If your enquiry concerns the policy on the so called "UFO phenomena, you will need to write to us at MOD.....(address), or if you are a member of the press you can speak to the MOD Press Office."

This message was made available on 3rd April 1997, and is a departure from the usual policy which was to reply to each person on their sighting. It would seem that the MOD are trying to make it publicly known that they do not want to know about UFO's and as such I think a number of researchers will be taking their complaint, and also that their relevant questions are no longer being answered by the MOD, on these facts to parliament this summer.

WAS DEFCON 4 REPORT A HOAX?

INTERNET MESSAGE CITING
NORAD AT DEFON 4 A HOAX

Mississauga, Ontario, Canada : 18:10
hrs. April 17/ 1997.

Internet users in Canada and the United States received the following e-mail message: "It is almost 1:30 am and I am listening to ART BELL and several of his guests...if you're not listening, it is possible that history is being made tonight. For those of you not listening NORAD at Cheyenne Mountain, Colorado, is on a full alert and is at DEFON 4. Also there has been a full military alert tonight."

There are reports of UFO sightings today and tonight in several areas as well as major sighting via satellite off the Northern California coast this morning and if true it is awesome.

There is also the possibility that we are entering into a very serious deadly situation of a military nature. National Security. Whatever the reason for this alert it is serious from DEFON 4 to be issued for any reason.

Please say a prayer for the continuation of our freedom and peace.

Signed: Charlotte.

Captain Dubuc, Media Liaison Officer for Department of National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa, Ontario, Canada stated that the Defence Condition at NORAD was definitely not at DEFON 4 - which is one step down from nuclear war. According to Dubuc there has been no unidentified traffic over the skies of Canada and this was echoed by the Media Liaison Officer at Canadian Armed Forces - Air and Sea Search and Rescue Operation headquarters at CFB Trenton, Ontario.

A report issued earlier today by the National UFO Reporting Center in the United States claims a federal employee contacted them stating a huge anomalous object was photographed by the GOES-9 weather satellite at 15:30 hours Zulu (8:30 am Pacific) and it was allegedly reported on CNN that NORAD had heightened it's alert status. Jim Hedges of CNN News Center in Atlanta told this reporter that he was not aware of this story. Hedges said that he had just finished speaking to their Pentagon Liaison contact within the hour and there was no report of any strange, unusual or military problem.

The US Weather Bureau and contacts at NASA said that this was the first that they had heard any of this.

NEW CZECH REPUBLIC PARANORMAL MAG.

People in the Czech Republic are now being brought up to speed on the happenings of the outside paranormal world and the internal weird happenings of their country courtesy of a new magazine called Fantastic Facts (Fantastika Fakta). This new magazine is sold on the news-stands and is edited by friends of Truthseekers magazine in the SIRIUS research group. SIRIUS have provided Truthseekers with articles on crop circles in the past and we have shared our news items with them - some of which have now appeared in the magazine. Because of marketplace differences their magazine retails at around 50p but is still a fully printed magazine. It makes one wonder, doesn't it, with our magazines costing so much.

We were lucky recently to be able to help SIRIUS with their first conference in Prague at the Pyramida Hotel. The conference was attended by speakers from Germany, Poland and by myself as a UK representative. The Czech Republic has been very much starved of UFO and paranormal news under the Soviet rule but now as a free country they are finding out exactly what is going on. The people are very interested and Fantastic Facts magazine sells out immediately.

The image which you see above and to the left if taken from the GEOS-9 satellite system web site. People familiar with the GEOS satellite noticed that the UFO was seen in both the visible and infra red cameras - which transmit their data independently which rules out this being wither a camera or signal glitch. Estimates have put the object as being high in the atmosphere but are unable to say exactly how large the object is - although they think probably many miles wide.

We were delighted to be able to help Petr Novak and other group members by taking part in one of the Czech Republics first press conferences on the paranormal. I was able to speak on UFOs and the British Cover-up with a view to impressing on people how they should ask government for information on UFOs.

The Politics Of UFOs

By Dr Colin Ridyard

The Curious Case of the Missing PRO Document By Dr Colin Ridyard, C. Chem., M.R.S.C.

Early last February, I dispatched a circular letter to a number of UFO Study Groups up and down the country. This offer also extends to anyone reading this article willing to invest in a stamped SAE and 20p to cover paper costs.

"I have recently been helping UFO groups up and down the country prepare formal, written parliamentary questions to present to their MPs who will hopefully table them in The House of Commons.

If can be of some use to your group in this way could you please send me the following details:-

- (i) Your MPs name and constituency
- (ii) Details of any multi-witness sightings in your area that were reported to the police, coast guard, MoD, Civil Aviation Authority or details of any sightings by commercial pilots. I only need details of the sighting it self and do not want you to break witness confidentiality. However, if you do send me any witness details, these will be treated in confidence and I will return the details along with the questions to be tabled back to you. I will not photocopy any details or keep any files on the incident.

What I will send you is:-

- (i) A covering letter for your MP which you have to sign and date.
- (ii) The details of the incident(s) for you to pass on to your MP along with the questions.
- (iii) A mini-petition requiring ten to twenty signatures from people in your UFO group which supports any action your MP takes

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact me on 01248 811580. I look forward to hearing from you. "

A number of people wrote back saying words to the effect that it was no use trusting politicians, they're corrupt Bs and given the multiple-sleaze revelations doing the rounds in the Popular Proletarian Press; I am loathe to disagree. But, er..... ..hang on a minute guys! Surely a question tabled by a corrupt ND is better than no question tabled at all! Surely a question tabled by a Tory MP on behalf of a Labour/Lib- Dem/Monster Raving Loony Supporter is better than no question tabled at all, assuming said NV does not ask for a bribe the size of a third world country's national debt. Surely a question will be tabled by Mr Sleaze if a petition turns up on his doorstep with more signatures than numbers in his Swiss Bank Account. And anyway, I put it to you that the vast majority of MPs are OK with 651 members, you are bound to get some rotten apples!

The point is, liaising with your MP to table to table formal, written Parliamentary Questions is the way forward. This is your right ! Although it may not feel like it, we do officially live in a Democracy and this may be our most potent weapon. The Human Spirit, The Power of The People and our Democratic Rights can and will overcome the power-crazed bureaucrats who seek to mislead and misinform.

To prove this point, let me tell you the story of the missing PRO Document AIR 2/16918. The mysterious absence of this Public Record was first brought to my attention by my good friend and WFIU Colleague (not to mention arch-nemesis of the MoD) Chris Fowler. On August 27th last year, he visited the PRO with Matthew Williams, Richard Conway and Sue Dilworth only to be told that the UFO-related file had been missing since May. This was despite there being a record suggesting that it was held in Photo Estimates. Further enquiries with PRO Staff revealed that the MoD had requested the document although this was later denied by the PRO and by Kerry Philpott at the MoD. The PRO promised to do all in their power to find the missing file and advised the investigators to try at a later date. They did-but to no avail.

Readers may be interested to know that under the Public Records Acts of 1958 and 1967, once a document has been opened to public inspection it cannot be closed again.

Being in regular contact with my MP, Mr Ieuan Wyn Jones, I wished to purchase some documents from AIR 2/16918 for his and my own reference. Especially the ones relating to investigations on members of the public who had witnessed UFOs. These investigations were carried out by Provost and Security Services (PSS, no, not the Waffen SS !), the MoD's own internal police service who are currently based at RAF Rudloe Manor. You can imagine my disappointment when, on 5 February, I received a quote from the PRO which said "Unfortunately, AIR 2/16918 is currently unavailable. I would suggest enquiring at a later date for an estimate."

My initial verbal response to this is quite unprintable in such a prestigious

journal as UFO Reality; however, after allowing a cooling off period of nineteen days (no, I didn't spend all that time swearing and stamping my feet, honest! my wife had in fact delivered a beautiful baby boy so you can imagine, I was somewhat distracted!) I spoke to the PRO Reprographic Orders Supervisor on the phone and asked him how on earth could a file containing 326 sheets of A3 go missing. The Supervisor, being a decent sort of chap told me that he would make enquiries. Indeed, he phoned back an hour later and told me that the document had been found and an estimate would be in the post. About four days later, the "estimate" came in the post and read rather curiously: -

"Further to our telephone conversation of 24 February with regard to the current status of AIR 2/16918 I regret to inform you that I have been misinformed with regard to this file and have today been told that this file is still unaccounted for. "

Note the choice of word "told", not the usual civil-service speak since "informed" or "advised" would be more usual in such circumstances.

I am aware that there is something called a Royal Assent which is a sort of cop-out clause which could possibly override the 1958 and 1967 Public Record Legislation. With this in mind, I wrote back to the PRO Reprographic Orders Supervisor asking him whether or not AIR 2/16918 had been censored with a Royal Assent. I also offered assistance via my MP if the document had been censored, suggesting that he would help revoke any Royal Assent. I must have touched a raw nerve as on or around the 15 March I received a reply from The Reprographic Ordering Manager assured me that no censorship order had been applied. Although I was still getting nowhere, at least I had moved up the chain of command.

Prior to this, I had already set the wheels in motion for my NV to table a PQ on this issue in a letter dated 3 March which read: -

"Incredible as it may seem, I think this administration is illegally trying to censor Public Record documents (see enclosures).

I would like to express my indignance and outrage at what is undoubtedly a politically motivated censorship, and bearing in mind that the integrity of certain armed forces ministers is already highly questionable, I have also passed this information on to the Leader of the Opposition and the Leader of the Lib Dems A single Parliamentary Question along the lines "To ask the PM on whose orders has the PRO Document AIR 2116918 been censored from Public scrutiny since August last year, for what reason and if he will make a statement" may be beneficial at this stage, especially since other parties are aware of the situation. "

As you can see, I had also sent details to Paddy Ashdown and Tony Blair informing them of the situation (good old civil service style to do things in triplicate). I forgot to inform John Major so if you are reading this magazine Johnny Boy please accept my apologies, I did write one for you; unfortunately however, I think I misfiled it !

The letter from the Reprographic Ordering Manager actually arrived on the same day as Mr Ieuan Wyn Jones agreement to table the appropriate question. I duly wrote to The Ordering Manager informing him that I had put the details in the hands of my MP as a matter of common courtesy and also to reassure him that I have nothing but adoration for the majority if not all of the hard working staff at the PRO. We are all human after all.

The PQ was tabled (and worded in a slightly more diplomatic way !) for a written answer on Friday 21 March 1997 by Mr Jones and reads:

Mr Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, if he will make a statement on public access to Public Record Office document AIR 2/16918.

The answer reads:

Mr Gary Streeter: The question concerns a matter which has been assigned to the Public Record Office under the terms of its framework document. I have therefore asked the Chief Executive to write to the honourable Member.

After this, it seems that all hell broke loose as the following Tuesday, I received a letter from the PRO Director of Public Services (still climbing that chain!) which read:

"I can assure you that enormous efforts have been made already to locate this file and that these are a continuing matter, which is one I am taking very seriously indeed, has caused me to review our rules for staff use of the records and I am introducing new and Draconian measures to ensure that the risk of such misplacements is in future kept to an absolute minimum"

Even more incredibly, I received a letter from the Director a few days later (dated 26 March) informing me that AIR 2/16918 had been found. Apparently, it had been misplaced in another box belonging to the same class. In mitigation, I would like to add the PRO holds several million documents on 160 kilometres of shelving, processing over a million document movements each year. We are all human and mistakes can occur although I would be interested to learn whether any other UFO-related PRO documents have taken an extended vacation !

The obvious question is was there any skulduggery involved. Certainly the fact that it only took five days to find a document that had hitherto been missing for a year makes you wonder but what could the motive be ? Nick Redfern also pointed out that a letter from the Keeper of Public Records to Mr Ieuan Wyn Jones dated 20 March revealed that the missing document was opened to public inspection in July 1990, when in fact it was to all intents and purposes a still-classified document (ed note, the document was in fact made public in Jan 1994). It would be interesting to find out who these privileged members of the public were !

Given the MoD's policy of "deny everything-admit nothing" I would speculate that it was too embarrassing for the MoD to reveal that UFO reports are taken seriously enough for its own police to become involved in the investigation of civilians. This is clearly the case in AIR 2/16918 which refers to a case investigated by PSS in Somerset circa 1962-63. I understand there are far better investigators than myself looking into these aspects and for my part, I am happy to continue with my political lobbying.

For years, Many people who investigate UFOs have sent reports of incidents to Secretariat (Air Staff) 2a who have always quoted the old "no defence significance" cop-out clause. As Ufologists, we often seem to retreat from these bureaucratic bullies, we seem verbally intimidated when told that church spires fly at 30000ft, Venus flashes red, blue and green and The Rendlesham landing amongst the nukes was "alleged" and irrelevant. I say it is time to stop retreating behind our barricades. I say it is time to draw a line in the sand, hold our ground and made a stand, I say it is time for us to go on the assault and do a little verbal bullying of our own. Time to hit Parliament hard and fast with relevant UFO-related questions. Even if it is something mundane and simple along the lines of

" To ask The Secretary of State for Defence will he concede that the UK Airspace has been penetrated by craft whose design and performance far exceed current state of the art aircraft design when taken in the context of such reports as (i) submitted by Lieutenant Colonel Charles Halt relating to events in Rendlesham forest in December 1980 (ii) correspondence from Air Secretariat 2a1 relating to the incidents of 30/31 March 1993 (iii) Joint Airmiss (P) 2/95 relating to The Manchester Ringways Incident of January 1995 (iv) AIR 20/9321, DDI (Tech)/c.290/3/ referring to an object at 50000ft that gave a radar return consistent with a ship's echo (V) AIR 20/9320, DDI (Tech)/S290 referring to an anomalous radar return with hovering and unusual acceleration capability and (vi) AIR 16/1199 relating to the testimony of Flight Lieutenant Kilburn of No 269 Squadron, RAF in September 1952; and if he will make a statement"

Please support this fight-back by lobbying your own MP, it would be unfair to expect Mr Ieuan Wyn Jones to do all the fighting. I am perfectly happy to assist anyone with what limited experience I have.

I can be contacted at 26 Hampton Way, Llanfaes, Beaumaris, LL58 8LG

To conclude, a petition containing some 400 signatures was formally presented to the Commons on 17 March requesting the establishment of an Independent Civilian Commission to investigate the UFO phenomenon in the UK.

1. No.4031777 SGT. SCOTT, J., Headquarters Provost and Security Services (U.K.)

ORIGINATING INFORMATION

2. Letter addressed to R.A.F. CHIVNOR from MISS. ANNE HENSON, CHILLIS OOD FARM, TRULL, TAUNTON, describing an aerial phenomenon seen at night. A copy of Appendix "A" was passed by hand to the Investigator on 24th October, 1962, by Wing Commander C. M. GIBBS, O.B.E., D.F.C., O.C. Flying Wing R.A.F. CHIVNOR.

INVESTIGATION

3. CHILLIS OOD FARM lies 4 miles South West of TAUNTON and is in a fairly isolated position.
4. MISS ANNE HENSON, aged 16, said Appendix "B", that on 30th August, 1962 between 10.30 p.m. and 10.55 p.m. she opened the window of her room which faces N.N.E. and saw a diminishing star-like object with what appeared to be red and green coloured flames coming from it. It was slightly larger than the average star and appeared to be round. After about 2 minutes it became very small and she could only see it with the aid of Binoculars. She was quite sure that it was not the navigation lights of an aircraft because she had seen these many times and could recognise them immediately. She heard no sound at all. She told her mother and two of her brothers who looked at the object and, after some discussion, said that it must be a star. She made an entry in her diary concerning the matter. She did not look for it again until 17th October, 1962, when she saw the object again which was partially obscured by fog. With the aid of binoculars she compared the object with several stars and noticed that the stars were silvery white whereas the object was red and green. She observed the object as the fog cleared and saw that it did not flash as does an aircraft's navigation lights but was both red and green at the same time, the colours being mixed together as if something was burning and giving off coloured flames. Near to and above the object she noticed another exactly similar but smaller object. She lost sight of both objects when the fog closed in. The following night 18th October, 1962 she saw both objects at 7.30 p.m. She noticed a difference in the colour of the original object which was now emitting green and orange flames in the same way as before. She took a "bearing" with her compass and noticed the object to be at 40° MAG, the second object was at 20° MAG. At 9.47 p.m. she again took a bearing and found that the original object was now at 70° MAG and was now greeny-white in colour. The second object was now at 60° MAG and appeared green in colour. Both objects were still visible when she retired at 10. p.m.

PHOTOCOPY: This is the offending document (amongst others) which probably got the file withdrawn from the public records office. It shows that P&SS (UK) were investigating UFOs in the 60's. Where does that leave Nick Pope and his story whereby his department was the only one investigating UFOs...? Or that officers of the MOD never visited witnesses...??? Hmmm

THE TRUTHSEEKERS INTERVIEW

Alés Cesal

Whilst in the Czech Republic recently I had the pleasure of meeting a young student of the esoteric arts. His name is Ales Cesal. We discussed many areas of the secrets of esoteric and secret societies. Find out now what his opinions are and how his experiences with Magic arts have changed his life...

With Matthew Williams

Matthew Williams: Ales, can I ask you what your involvement and interests with the esoteric matters are.

Ales: The best way to describe it, is that I am a member of an esoteric society "Universali" which means Universal Eye. It continues the traditions of the leading Czech esoterics, like Jan Kefer or Petr Kohout z Lasenice {known as Lasenic}. We as a society are trying to achieve a synthesis of all esoteric teachings. For example Jan Kefer was the librarian with the national museum in Prague and everyone in the esoteric world was interested in what he was doing, even the Nazis wanted him working for them. He even attempted in the first day of World War 2 to make a very strong evocation against the Nazis, but it didn't succeed because the Black Powers fought back.

He was even offered by Hitler to join his team of personal astrologers, but he refused this offer. Whilst he was a prisoner he made it his personal task to try and recover many of the esoteric books which were stolen by the Nazis during the occupation but in the end he was discovered and taken to a harsh prison camp for workers, where he died. So Kefer was part of a branch of the early Universal Eye organisation before the war.

So his intention, together with Doctor Elias who was to gather leading Kabbalist information and he knew the magical practices of Asia, was to provide as much of this ancient knowledge to the public as was possible. Petr Kohout z Lasenice - Lasanek founded a lodge called Uwlilous and he was of the opinion all this knowledge should be removed from the public and kept for only a small amount of people. Their information was regarding ancient Egypt etc. and these were the foundations of pre war "Universali".

After 1989 there was another Universali group when the old one was renewed. The new one tries to continue in the work of the pre-war Universali but considering the coming of the new age of Aquarius there is a great need for new ways and approaches. The main idea is the concept of Hermitism (it has nothing to do with hermits, but with Hermes Trismegistos). This means the synthesis of all the esoteric teachings including Tarot, Kabbalah and up to Magic. Special emphasis is put on Tarot and Alchemy.

MW: So how did you get involved in all of this?

A: At first I used to read about mysteries in general, Loch Ness monster etc. Then I got access to books by Ludvik Soucek (A Czech author who is a popular esoteric investigator) and Erich von Daniken. I then got a book called "The Dawn Of The Magicians". So from these mystery works I got into deeper things.

MW: How do you research or go about furthering his interest?

A: My main area of interest is between the old teachings like magic and the new connections between aliens, UFOs and abductions - possible connections between demons etc. As regards how I practise, I am still looking for my own way. It is a very personal search. Sometimes I get the feeling that God is riveted down in some place and the force that is ruling us today is not God. This does not mean that I do not believe in God, just that I am a little scared sometimes. I just want to demonstrate that the God is not that almighty and that I don't want to accept all the religious dogma that there is. For what do we know about the way things really are.

MW: Does this mean that God is really the underdog or just that he is not showing himself at the moment - i.e. he could one day rise up once again?

A: Possibly.

MW: What have you experienced in the way of Tarot, Kabbalah and Magic that tells you that all this stuff is real. Can you give us examples?

A: I have experimented with Magic. There are a lot of circumstances on which this depends such as positions of the stars or the moment of your birth.

MW: How far do you think that magic can go.

A: It is unlimited - to the throne of God. I know a few people who use magic but where magic is concerned it never ends well. It always backfires on people. There is a certain rule and teaching in the esoteric area which says - if you wish for something, then only wish for the kingdom of God. If you wish for this then the rest will follow by the way.

Magic doesn't often choose this path, instead people who practice magic try to go directly for the things that you would find on the way and this is why they backfire. If you follow your path directly to the kingdom of God then all those other things you were seeking would happen anyhow.

Magic is a very demanding training system. It requires a strong mind and strong convictions. If the persons approach is not serious then this is going to have very serious consequences. You cannot avoid the training else there will be damage to the mind or body.

Sometimes at the end of the road there is Knowledge, the word Knowledge being with a capital K, but if the person is not ready to receive it, it can kill him.

There is a very pertinent story about two frogs. One frog lived in a well and she was visited by a frog from the sea. The frog from the sea told her about the vastness of the sea. The frog who lived in the well would not believe the frog from the sea. However the sea frog insisted that the sea did exist and told the other frog that it was so wide and large that it goes on almost for ever. In the end the well dwelling frog was so interested in proving the sea frog wrong that it was decided to go with the sea frog and to look at the sea. When they arrived at the shore, the well dwelling frog was overwhelmed by the sight and suffered a heart attack and died. This is because the well dwelling frog could not take in so much knowledge and change of concept of belief so quickly - the world she came from being so small.

The principles of magic is like a science but is built on a very high mental and spiritual principle. It is very technological and based on your own techniques.

MW: Can you give us some examples of your experiences.

A: Hmmm. A will agree to tell you about one black one and one white one.

MW: I am in a very serious listening mode now.

A: First I started reading about magic and magical practice. I wasn't involved in any special ritual and had no training. Sometimes I would be inspired by music such as Carmina Burana by Karl Orff. There is something very dark to this music and the composer also wrote music for Hitler. Once he was compelled by this music to perform a magical ritual. It was a subconscious willing for me to move my hands and arms and legs in the air in the form of a magical ritual. Afterwards I started having personal problems and it came to mind that he could solve these problems with the power of magic. So I set up a Pentagram and was carrying out a ritual of love magic by myself. I was reciting quotations of magical formulas and didn't really expect that it would do anything. Afterwards a wooden base on the corridor of his flat shattered, and later he realised that the base was facing the direction that the tip of the pentagram was facing. Dishes smashed in my kitchen by themselves. I then had a strange sense of fear coming over me and I knew it was something to do with the ritual.

Then the strange thing happened. I knew that I was to prepare myself for sleep. When I went to bed it was as if a net had suddenly fallen over me. I felt trapped and could not move and I felt something run over me. It was like little feet - birds feet, it felt like. It was very unpleasant. I was to learn that this is a very common sensation in the field of work. I knew that this was a warning. So this is the dark experience. I have had more of these. These are very connected with dream visions but people are able to distinguish between these things and normal dreams. I feel that this is very connected with the UFO phenomenon and there are many of the same principles involved, but this is just my opinion.

The light experience was that there was a very complex personal situation. I just decided just not to think about the ending of the situation or it's outcome and the moment that I decided to do this it felt as if my head was lightening and I felt shivers all over my body and a flow of very powerful energy and he was laughing at people in the street with tears of happiness running down his face. I let my friends Marushka draw a psychic picture of this situation and she showed that I had experienced a state that was near death. I feel that I had understood the problem in my mind and so it found a reflection in my mystical experiences.

MW: So where is all of this leading you. Where would you wish to be?

A: I don't know. Not very long ago I was christened as a Catholic. The main thing that attracted me to this religion was its magical power. For example it's ritual - the water for this act is prepared in a very specific way. There is a very large Easter candle which is lit in the courtyard of the church, this is taken to the font, which is wonderful symbolism in an esoteric sense. The candle is a phallic symbol and the font is the vagina so the bringing together of these two very powerful elements is very powerful ritual. It is the bringing together of fire and water and this is a symbolic representation of the hexagon. The symbols for fire and water and triangles upwards and downwards. So this is a communion of the two.

Somebody told me that I need the security of the church so this is why I got the christening. There are many people who have problems of the spiritual character and I am helping these people. I want to help these people very much and I want to become an exorcist one day but I feel that I do not have enough humility for this act. I feel that a person is not supposed to carry out this act just for spiritual satisfaction. I feel that regarding my past lives that I must have been somebody who has moved on the edge, between black and white, which is perhaps more difficult than turning to one particular side. These things are rather personal theories which he would not present at a conference or anything.

MW: Do you know any people who are aligned with the dark or bad side?

A: Rather than knowing people who are into bad things I have met with people who themselves are trapped in a very bad situation.

MW: Universal eye - is it a neutral organisation or is there any slant.

A: It wants to go to the way of the light and keep apart from those black things. It is very close to Christianity and the Rosicrucians.

MW: If it is a positive organisation then do you think that its concepts and teachings would ever be accepted by the Catholic Church?

A: I am afraid not. However there is a development with the Catholic Church and that Pope John Paul II has met with the Dalai Lama and now is thinking that they will accept the concept of reincarnation. This is not official. He did a meditation with the Dalai Lama and at a recent UFO conference in Switzerland a papal aid was present there and he claimed perhaps in a naive way that Christ is working on other planets too. He was perhaps not qualified to make this statement. I think that perhaps this is not quite true but am unsure if the work on other planets concerns Christ or the Aliens.

MW: Is there a truth behind the Bible or has it been misrepresented?

A: The basic mistake is that it is badly translated. I don't know if this is out of a mistake or out of malevolent intent but you would have to speak to somebody who speaks Hebrew to learn this. There is a lot of Esoteric teaching but I am mostly interested in things which are not included in the bible. There are too many inconsistencies in the bible for me to believe in it. If I had to choose in a version of the bible which is nearest what I am happy with I would say it would be the Ecumenical translation. I use the Czech translation. The parts I am interested in do not appear in the bible. They are the apocrypha - the scrolls from the dead sea, from which there is a lot which needs to be learned.

MW: As we have partly discussed, there is a pagan element inside the Christian and Catholic religion which shows that many elements of the ceremonies are really magical rituals. When the church says that people should not delve into magic and then uses it itself, do you have any feelings on these contradictions?

A: I think that this is a natural development. Christianity established an order in its time. It was a settlement of many things. In this period it is very dangerous to evoke old gods because they are very willing to listen to these evocations. I know people who evoke the old deities and were childishly pleased in the fact that it worked, such as Lilith (Lilith in English translation) who was Adam's first wife. According to the apocrypha and Kabbalistic tradition Adam had a first wife before Eve and she was a very evil and sinister woman. Adam repulsed her and she became a goddess of the darkness. During moonless nights she was supposed to kill unchristened babies and her roots are in the oldest Babylonian legends. So I do not like the idea of evoking old gods like this.

Every Christian service or mass is an invocation and at the same time a sacrifice. I think that Christianity tries to push these things away but it is not bad. Christianity is against anything that could put man into chaos. It gives people a very steady way and is based on harmony and order, contrary to Islam. Christianity preaches love above all which I believe is the most important. Buddhism is very close to Christianity but what is missing in Christianity is the teaching of reincarnation. It was said that Christ taught this principle and that somewhere back in the past it was removed from the bible. If there was a connection between Buddhism and Christianity then a powerful and large new world religion then arises.

MW: If you acknowledge many gods, what would your definition or term be for the most almighty God that created everything?

A: God is a principle, like energy and is omni-present. The gods are the remains of the old worlds and mental energies and materialised thoughts.

MW: What are the connections with old magic for the church and Christianity?

A: Many Romanesque or gothic churches stand on sacred sites. Rotundas (Romanesque rounded churches) stand on many negative zones. It implies that Christianity wanted to close the doorways to such negative zones. They may on the other hand be churches situated on positive places, such as the energetic centre of Prague.

MW: Yes Prague is a very strange city for me. Whilst I was expecting many things I was surprised to see that I was wrong about the city possibly being "run down". Some of the most surprising things I found were the mysticism esoteric and occult connections in this city. From a short walk around the town you really do not have to go too far to see occult symbology which is connected with magic. You get a real feeling for the fact that there is something "going on" in this place. To most people who don't understand these things go unnoticed, but to somebody who has a small insight in to these things it becomes very obvious what is going on...

A: Yes. There are many more groups like those I am involved with - Universal Eye - which are oriented towards Eastern Esoterics, Oriental and Indian. There are also things like various Rosicrucian Orders. These are all very similar to the organisation I am involved with. The bad ones or the dark ones are individual and disorganised groups. There are the Templars and the Knights of Malta have headquarters here.

MW: Does the Universal Eye have a logo or emblem.

A: Yes it is a rose on a thorned crown. It is an old emblem and we need to renew it, perhaps.

MW: What do you know about Prague, the home of so many orders and lodges - what mystery is the city steeped in?

A: I will start firstly with the legend. There is a legend that Prague was founded by seven Indian seers - wise men - there was supposed to be some secret mysterious brotherhood. Praha (the Czech name for Prague) in Czech means the word "threshold" which is a mystical term par excellence.

Another thing is that on such a small limited space there is a concentration of churches. In the early middle ages there used to be a settlement called Levy Hradec. This place had the best conditions of becoming the capital of the area, but despite this Prague was developing in a very large way. So what happened was the settlement moved into Prague.

Another thing we know is that whilst Prague is a city of much political change the one thing that we know that whilst many rulers have changed over the years, Prague remains.

There are many theories about the use of sacred geometry in Prague and it was well known that our old King and Emperor Charles the 4th directed much of his constructions according to astrologers and the most marked example is "the route" - The Prague Castle, The Charles Bridge and the Vysehrad ("High Castle" in Czech) - a hill with a dark church on it. Even the building dates were planned according to astrology. The geometry had to be very precise too - for example the grave of St Vitus at the cathedral was positioned so that on summer solstice the sun will set directly over the grave. The route from the castle to Vishhara???? was the coronation route. Perhaps there is an esoteric expression in these things - we don't know - but we could not imagine any better consecration of magical power than this route.

Prague's greatest heyday of esoterics was under Rudolph the 2nd. Some historians claim that he was mad but some presume him to be a genius. He was known to have supported alchemy on his court - such as John Dee. What is less known is the fact concerning his crown. The crown was very precisely made according to the position of the jewels and the position of the cross. So when he put the crown on his head it was like some sort of spiritual accumulator.

About the freemasons of Prague. The freemasons came to Prague in the 18th century but the predecessor of the freemasons were the Rosicrucians and Yan Amos Kerminsky. Some freemasons deny that he was one of the Rosicrucians but the Rosicrucians took over much of his terminology from his books etc. Freemasonry was very much the way of the aristocracy. There was much influence from outside lodges such as in Berlin. The greatest influence was from the Grand Orient in France. It is rumoured that many of our statesmen from this century have been freemasons or have at least sympathised with them. One of the best examples is this is our second president Edvard Benes. He is known from the Munich treaty between England, Czechoslovakia and France and he died in the 40's. When he penned the Munich treaty he handed the borderlands to Hitler and he had no right to do this but he was instructed by this lodge from France. This is of course known official history but this is the strong rumour. He was ordered by the freemasons to do it and he did. He was himself a freemason.

Photo: Alchemists search for the secrets of transmutation of matter and for the philosophers stone has carried on for centuries

The reason that the freemasons are interested in Prague is because it is seen as a the second new Jerusalem and this makes it a very important place. There is a prophecy that when the end of the world comes this area will be saved. The attribution of the title new Jerusalem would only be logical if someone had real information showing this to be the case.

I do not think the freemasons are the most important force working here in Prague, I believe that there are others which are not so well known - something more important. Perhaps the freemasons are just set up and there is something beyond them. There are rumours about Solomon's mason Hiram, who built his temple. We can't make too many one sided judgements about the freemasons because there are so many areas of confusion inside their organisation. For instance the freemasons say that Hiram was a mason but the historic sources say that Hiram was a Blacksmith. So the designers of these buildings and architecture could have been tools or vehicles for a higher power and were inspired to create these buildings even though it was not their craft - like Hiram. Probably it was not accidental. Francis Bacon in his work "New Atlantis" describes a very strange society there with knowledge and abilities from psychology to medicine. He described this at the beginning of the 17th century. If such knowledge exists I can imagine as God as somebody sitting at a computer and manipulating people. I don't believe in Atlantis as a continent but as a culture.

MW: With all this talk of secret societies and hidden truths about technology does this mean that at the very highest levels of these societies there are people who do possess this technology and are still using it?

A: Access to this technology can only be given to those people who have had the highest levels of training and are trusted very much not to want to misuse this technology. Only people with enhanced abilities and training would be able to use this technology anyhow. I do not imagine that there are groups of seers or individuals meet once a year to discuss this technology or decide it's use. Instead it is a subtle involvement with the group on an automatic level of your personal development. IE: Once a person is trained to a high enough level he simply becomes aware of the groups existence through his consciousness and automatically becomes a part of it, and is aware without needing to attend a physical meeting ever. Perhaps this is what the Catholic church calls the fellowship of the saints, and you don't need a membership card to belong to these. This fellowship may be taking place on a higher plane such as the astral or even higher. This is my idea of the white secret society. I am convinced though that the opposite exists too and these are not concerned with the upgrading of mankind but perhaps instead they seek it's destruction.

MW: What is the basis of sacred geometry and how does it work?

A: This was probably best described by Louis de Charpentier in his book "The Mystery of the Cathedral Chartres" whereby the cathedral is a huge instrument to lift and transform the inner essence of man - a alchemic transmutation - and it uses the magic of shapes, the arch which means penetration upwards. If you imagine a group of cathedrals in one place it would multiply the effect. There are theories that sacred geometry is a relic of something much older than Christianity, something to do with Kabbalah. These places can also be navigation points using the stars as alignment points. It may not be possible to say that the system of navigation is still there because a lot of old churches and cathedrals have been destroyed and so the network no longer exists, so we may never know it's true scale and purpose.

MW: What is your opinion on the freemasons and other secret societies, are they honest and working for good?

A: My opinion is that they are not as good and honest as they used to be. The freemasons is just a fellowship of snobs in this country. Perhaps they have transformed into a more secret society which is not known. I used to perceive the freemasons as something good, about people who carry out mystical exercises I don't think so anymore.

MW: Oh dear, so I have been influencing you then. Do freemasons practice magic from your knowledge.

A: I wouldn't call it magic but rather mystical exercises. It's the mysticism of letter and evocations of the vowels of the name of God placed on the human body. There are various degrees and rites according to the levels of what people are taught, and the most famous rite is the Scottish rite which contains 33 degrees. The French have their rite and there are parallels between the Rosicrucians and because all of these things are known it must be that this is just public information - for the public to know and there are real secrets much higher.

MW: What do you know about regressions to past lives?

A: Well I do not believe that people are getting to the truth with regressions. I believe that if you imagine the here and now at this moment, I believe we are experiencing all our past lives at this exact moment, including the future ones. It seems very clear to me. And at the same time every deed I do influences all these past lives in a very significant way. The only thing which exists is the eternal now.

Illustration: This drawing by Eliphas Levi - a master magician - of the Seal Of Solomon is known as the Double Triangle of Solomon. It tries to show the duality of all things - with the good shown above and the evil below. It also shows the belief that man too has a good and bad nature in him. This symbol has been used by Freemasons in their Set Square and Compass emblem. Not everyone is happy to see representations of good and evil being equal strengths.

MW: What does you know about the symbology of the "all seeing eye" and the triangle. For instance it appears in the Prague streets and many churches in the Czech Republic.

A: I don't know very much about it, but for me, it doesn't fit into the church decoration. For me it is not OK to see this there and it is an intrusion. It is very strange and doesn't have a very good effect on me. It is intuitive and cannot describe it.

MW: Do you know anything about the concept of the "Grand Architect of the Universe" in societies such as the Freemasons.

A: Each member of the Freemasons society tries to become the cornerstone - to carve and cut himself by mystical exercises. He is trying to work architecture on himself so he becomes one of the cornerstones of the New Jerusalem. Some of the Freemasons drove the Christ away from their teaching and replaced him with the concept of this Architect. Some groups use this mystical being or force to replace Christ. There are groups who identify this being or force with the Grand Architect.

MW: Do you make any connections with the Freemasonic "All Seeing Eye" and the Eye of Horus? (Egyptian pyramids etc.).

A: It really goes deep and does have a connection. You must not forget the pyramid and the eye too. There is a ritual called the "Fire of Hore (HORUS)." It is very very old. And it is supposed to be one of the most secret esoteric teachings. A lot of Czech esoteric magic works on this principle. I don't find the connection between this ritual and Ancient Egypt very happy, because there was a lot of Black Magic involved in ancient Egypt. It would seem that something evil is here and is penetrating through the eye, and so it is very strange that this eye is so often in churches.

MW: Would he say that you know that Freemasons refer to "The Grand Architect Of The Universe" as a entity or being who exists but is not God?

A: It just occurred to me that when you mention this concept that he is not God that he could be part of the prophecy of the Apocalypse - the Revelation of St John and they talk about 12 old men. The Grand Architect may be one of them.

MW: A pyramid or triangle - what would its representation or energy to somebody involved with magic or mysticism.

A: We know that the pyramids have some very strange properties such as sharpening of objects, preservation of food or of flesh. So certainly there are some energetic processes which are taking place there. These places may serve to store energy. There were stories that the pyramids were used to store grain, but this could be symbolic and the grain could have been energy.

There is a theory that the pyramids used to have polished "desks" and the light which reflects from them is known to be cold. So it may be that somebody who used the pyramids with these polished surfaces may have wanted to keep the inside of the pyramids cool.

Also there is a magnetic stone which is crystallised as two pyramids against each other and this is supposed to have energetic properties.

The triangle now... It represented as three in one. It shows up in some spirits such as in God as the Holy Trinity (Father Son and the Holy Ghost). The Celts used to have a triple goddess. The triangle is also a very important shape in Astrology. If you take two triangles then you get a hexagram which is a very powerful symbol.

MW: If I was to give you a talisman, either a medallion or some form of talisman printed on a piece of paper, even if no magical powers had been worked on that talisman, would by its nature as a pictorial representation have powers?

A: I am afraid. YES.

MW: Therefore what do you think of the symbology on the back of the American Dollar? What would this mean?

A: It speaks of a terrible manipulation, through the ages. I don't like it.

MW: I understand your countries President is a Freemason?

A: Yes. And on the day of his inauguration he was made to parade in front of the Army and he was wearing short trousers and everyone thought it looked so silly. The people laughed and said perhaps he cannot afford proper trousers and this sort of thing but there was another reason for this - he is connected with the Freemasons and it was part of their rituals.

MW: To comment on the New World Order concept, whereby all world governments will be brought together and ruled under one power. This public ideal will not be the real agenda because with all the secret societies and secret international political groups such as the Trilateral Commission or the Bilderberger Group, you can not find out what their real agenda is. Do you think that it is safe to have a man as the President of your country when he is in any way connected with underground movements with an occult or perhaps sinister political edge?

Alice: In the Prague Castle near the Presidents office there was a column which was put there in the communist years and it was just a plain marble column. Now it has a pyramid on the top of it, since our Freemason President had got into power. This never used to be there before. The pyramid there was a golden and it had a different colour at it's top. So there are Freemasons in the castle again!!!

MW: Perhaps it signifies that he is a completion of an old idea which simply needed to be completed. Perhaps there is significance in the pyramid being placed at the top and we know that the Cleopatras Needle or Washington Monument are Freemason symbols. Also is it right that this be done without the people knowing the full significance of why it is there, and that public money was used to do this as an act of fulfilment and adoration to the Freemasons.

(Shows a drawing of a de-capped pyramid)

What is the significance of this symbology?

A: There is a white pyramid in China, it is the biggest in the world and it is like this - it has its top removed. If you remove the top of the pyramid you will change it's energy and this will affect things.

MW: What do you know about the most basic forms of pyramids

A: If something has right angles then it is negative, if it has no right angles then it is not negative.

MW: So do you think that a balance triangle on the back of the dollar for instance if it is cut in half is a statement of destruction of the natural balance - and then the remaining symbols - a triangle with an all seeing eye and a trapezoid underneath are negative. Have you heard that the all seeing eye is sometimes seen as the eye of Baal (an ancient demon from Mesopotamian and Babylonian times). One last thing (Shows him the pyramid with the top cut off and highlights the lower leftover, also known as trapezoid, part of the pyramid base) this symbol, in many occult or satanic groups is the definitive representation of evil and Satan. Some groups in their initiations and certifications for joining their groups, refer to the order of the trapezoid.

A: I believe that these occult groups or secret societies are behind provoking world conflicts and also are involved in worshipping these very old gods.

UFOLOGY PROVES IT'S POINT

By Malcolm Robinson

Will UFOlogy ever be proved as a serious subject? We all know it finds itself at the forefront of many a media joke, and no matter how impressive the evidence can be, apart from the "would be believers", UFOlogy has never really proven it's point. Well not so!

The case for UFOlogy was recently proven in court, (admittedly a mock court). On Friday 21st March 1997, Grampian Television, based in Aberdeen Scotland, completed it's series of programmes entitled "We The Jury". This programme is set up in a court and takes in both topical issues, and issues that the general public would like to see debated. For it's last programme in the current series, they decided to debate the issue of UFOs in Scotland and the people who claimed to have seen them. Was there a case to be answered? Are UFOs and alien sightings a reality?

For the first time in the history of UFOlogy, the subject was to be given a serious hearing in court with a professional jury made up from individuals from all walks of life. Presenting the case for the reality of UFOs, was Malcolm Robinson, founder of Scottish research group Strange Phenomena Investigations, whose study into the wave of UFO sightings over Bonnybridge in Central Scotland is well known. Opposing the belief that UFOs are a reality was arch sceptic and debunker, Mr Steuart Campbell from Edinburgh whose books debunking UFOs and the Loch Ness monster are well known.

Supporting Steuart in the court audience were many professional and amateur astronomers including Professor Archie Roy of Glasgow University. Clearly the opposition were of high standing and their views that UFOs were a "non reality" would no doubt be presented with an academic vigour.

Mr Robinson's supporters for the motions that UFOs were a "reality" were made up primarily of UFO witnesses which also included Scotland's most famous "UFO abductees" Garry Wood and Colin Wright and also SPI members including Billy Devlin. The stage was set then for what looked like a heated debate, and never have more truer words been said!

As this was not a recording but going out live over various parts of Northern Scotland, it was a major platform to present UFOlogy fairly and accurately to the Nation without and editing or people telling you what you could or could not say. Sure we've had Kilroy Silk and other daytime T.V. programmes debating the issue, but this was different, this was in court, with a proper jury. The scene was set and the gloves were on, it was now time to do battle.

Mr Robinson then took the floor and spoke to the jury about close proximity sightings, radar visual sightings, and the fact that the sheer volume and weight of "impressive UFO cases" were growing each year. He asked the jury to consider this, and also to remember the fact that this was truly a global phenomenon of immense importance. The hushed court listened intently as Mr Robinson delivered his speech after which it was the turn of Steuart

Campbell to present his case.

Reading from notes (Mr Robinson didn't require this stimulus to get his point over!) Mr Campbell asked the jury to consider that there was no concrete evidence to prove alien or UFOs exist or were visiting this planet and that the whole of UFOlogy could be explained away as having natural explanations from temperature inversion layers to mirages.

His plea over, it was then the turn of the court audience to voice their opinions on the matter, and boy did they voice their opinion. The arguments swung from left to right as both sets of "believers" and "non believers" aired their views. Brian Mc Mullan, lead guitarist with Glasgow UFO rock band CE IV, was not being put off by the astronomical explanations being given from the other side of the courtroom, and he spoke with contempt at these views and gave a scathing attack on Campbell for supporting them.

Soon the T.V. courtroom was swinging with arguments from both sets of "supporters" and one was beginning to think that things were getting out of hand. A cut for commercials soon came round which gave time for emotions to be cooled. Resuming the debate, one astronomer stated angrily, that no other astronomer had ever witnessed a UFO, a point which UFOlogy can prove otherwise, (Professor Clyde Tombaugh who discovered Pluto).

During the course of this 'live' T.V. debate, the viewers were asked to phone in with their own views on the matter, did they believe in UFOs? Had they seen one? Soon the phones were virtually ringing off the hooks!! The presenter then asked Garry Wood to inform the jury and watching T.V. audience about his own experience which was backed up by his friend Colin Wright who also shared this same double abduction. The sceptics continued to press home their point that UFOs were a "non reality" and could be explained away. At which point Malcolm Robinson came in and said to one sceptic, "have you actually sat down and studied the UFO data" to which he replied "no".

The debate raged on and tempers were now becoming a bit frayed. All to soon though, the programme was coming to an end, and both Mr Robinson and Mr Campbell were asked to give a 45 second summing up of their case to the jury. Campbell continued to stress the point (with notes in hand) that UFOs were all misidentifications of ordinary mundane objects, where as Robinson stressed the need to "examine the evidence for oneself" to look and search for the honest UFO data which was there in abundance.

With that it was time for the jury to deliver their verdict. What would it be? The courtroom was hushed as the Jury foreman was asked to give it's verdict, which was, "We the jury find the case for the reality of the UFO phenomenon, proven by 9 votes to 3." This verdict was greeted with ecstatic applause by the supporters of UFOlogy whilst the amateur and professional astronomers and UFO sceptic Professor Archie Roy, sat silent with facial expressions of abject disappointment and disbelief!

This victory for UFOlogy was made all the more sweeter knowing that we were up against strong opposition who were not ordinary members of the public as such, but professional and amateur astronomers. So for the first time in British television history the case for UFOs was "PROVEN". But wait, there's more. Grampian Television were snowed under by telephone calls from members of the public who also believed there was a case to be answered. A staggering 86% of the public felt strongly that UFOs were a reality.

So UFOlogy scored a victory which was celebrated back at the hotel into the wee small hours by members of SPI and also English UFOlogist Eric Morris, who was flown up by Grampian to participate.

The platform for the reality of UFOs was taken on and won that night, the fight now goes on to show the world that they must now look at this subject with serious eyes and recognise the importance of UFOlogy. New cases are emerging every day and we can only hope that the ridicule which this subject has endured throughout the years will finally be put to rest; It was that night, and boy did victory taste sweet.

UFO LECTURE

Larry Warren & Peter Robbins

Authors of a new book "LEFT AT EAST GATE"

- A true coverup of a major UFO incident.

CARDIFF STUDENTS UNION
Tuesday 10th June

About the speakers...

Larry Warren was a member of the US Air Force Security Police stationed at an American base on British soil, and was taken from his guard post to investigate strange lights in a forest clearing near the base. Here he and other enlisted men and officers confronted an Alien craft on the ground. Even the base deputy commander has come forward to verify some of the details in this case, making it one of the most talked about UFO cases of all time. - A REAL BRITISH "ROSWELL".

Peter Robbins, is an American writer and researcher who works with Budd Hopkins (famous for his research into the alien abduction phenomena). Peter investigated the case for 9 years and is convinced that there is much we have not been told by either the US or UK Government about what happened in that Suffolk forest in December 1980.

IT'S THE MOST SECRET UNITED STATES BASE IN BRITAIN

GETTING BIGGER

There is a growing campaign to close this secret base... For over 20 years, many people have worked to oppose the base. There have been vigils, demonstrations, peace camps, nonviolent blockades, letters to the press and radio and TV coverage (copies of the videos of a number of nationally or regionally broadcast programmes about Menwith Hill and the campaign to close it are available from Yorkshire CND - address below).

Action through the courts has successfully challenged the military bylaws at the base. There is now a permanent women's peace camp on the A59 next to the base. There is also a regular Quaker meeting for worship on the first Saturday of every other month. We will continue to protest against Menwith's promotion of the arms trade, its violation of civil liberties, its promotion of war and its lack of accountability.

"No-one concerned about civil liberties can ignore Menwith Hill. Despite many attempts to get answers to questions it is quite clear that Menwith Hill is not accountable to MP's and therefore not to the British people." - Alice Mahon, MP

The Menwith Hill spy base, near Harrogate, is run by the National Security Agency (NSA) of the United States. It employs over 1800 staff, mainly American, who are ordered never to mention the NSA and to report all contacts with foreign nationals (that's us!). The NSA was set up by Presidential decree in 1952 without any debate in the US Congress. The American people know very little about it and even less about Menwith Hill.

Menwith Hill - is listening.... Inside "hardened" buildings, the NSA staff work round the clock tapping into international telephone, telex and other communications. All telecommunications traffic to and from Europe and that passing through Britain is intercepted at the base, including private telephone calls.

Each of Menwith Hill's powerful computers then sifts through some four million words per minute, searching out military, diplomatic, political and commercial information useful to the United States.

Euro. MPs have asked the European Council of Ministers whether Menwith Hill is undermining European jobs and business by selling European trade secrets to US companies. Selected information is exchanged with the British listening post at GCHQ, Cheltenham and a number of GCHQ staff also work at Menwith Hill.

The American authorities largely refuse to answer questions, give out information or allow reporters, MP's or MEP's onto the base. Answers are refused to many of the questions that MPs ask about Menwith Hill in the House of Commons.

PRIME NUCLEAR TARGET.....

There are no missiles at Menwith Hill but the base would play a crucial role in any nuclear strike mounted by the United States. As such, it would be a prime nuclear target in the event of war. Menwith Hill received an award for the part it played in 'Desert Storm' during the Gulf War. Despite being an American-controlled facility, Menwith Hill was in 1996 designated a RAF base.

The site keeps on growing. Despite the end of the Cold War, the NSA continues to have a budget of some $10 billion per year. It spends $1 million per minute spying on the communications of the UK, French and German governments. There are now 24 radomes (the giant "golfballs" which cover the satellite dishes) at Menwith Hill and many more aerial masts. The base lies within, but officially excluded from, an Area Of Outstanding Natural Beauty. Although a token planning application has to be submitted for building work at the base, the local authority (Harrogate Council) has no power to refuse permission or impose conditions.

NSA have been involved in withholding information on the UFO subject from researchers, so what connections could there be between a base such as this and UFOs?

A discussion on the theories of Quantum Physics with Ozzie Boulier

Like most people, from time to time I can't help but ponder on the wonders of everything. Some people would say that life itself is the most wondrous thing and that exists in the world. Far be it for me to disagree with the wonder of life itself; I feel that life, and the free will to enjoy it has been given to us by God. (God Meaning universal love and understanding (all knowing). Not a statement of any religious sect).

We all have the gift of the ability to think, and the free will to put into action. We can think simple things like, what shall I have for dinner, to shall we let Man live or die.

My interest in ET's started by setting myself a simple question, which was: If Aliens are visiting us from another world, how do they get here? Now where do we start to solve the problem?

First let's look at an even bigger quest man has set himself: where did man and everything, everywhere, come from?

There are 80 to 100 billion galaxies that we know exist. Top scientists, in trying to solve this problem, have looked at the very big solar systems, galaxies but also they look inside what, would seem a strange place to look - the very small, secrets and strange tenants of the atom. These scientist have even given themselves a special name, Quantum Physicists.

So I decided that me, being a lesser mortal than the scientist, could do a lot worse than look in the same area for the answer to my question.

Leading edge science shows us that sub-atomic particles know where all other sub-atomic particles are in time and space and can have an effect on one another anywhere/everywhere (in the universe) instantaneously (without any time delay) even though they are seemingly unconnected. (Please forgive me at this point if my knowledge of quantum mechanics is not too accurate. My only defence is, particle physicists themselves know very little of what happens at the quantum level of reality. The reason for this will be partly explained later). The laws of relativity, for instance, break down at the quantum level! So particles know where and when other particles are. It seems that it is only man that's stuck with the uncertainty principle of the quantum.

We as humans seem to be trapped in a less than the speed of light world. In fact a lot less than the speed of light, three dimensional plain. For every day living, our $-c$ (speed of light) barrier does not cause us any problems, because light travels at 186,000 miles per second and everything we perceive seems instantaneous.

However when we look at our star, (The Sun), we are actually seeing how it looked 8 minutes ago, in its history. Light takes eight minutes to travel from the Sun to Earth. This delay of course isn't a problem for man in every day life.

The time that light takes to travel from one point to another is important however, when we look into space and especially when we consider travelling long distances through the galaxies. Most stars are so far away that we use light years to measure their distance from Earth. As we look into deep space, we see stars so far away that they actually burnt out millions of years ago.

When we hear about the speed of light factor (i.e. nothing can travel faster than the speed of light) we must be aware of the latest developments in scientific research which, when we wish to view the whole universe, show us that light is slow.

It is thought that some quanta can reach higher than the speeds of light, $-c^3$. However even these speeds are too slow for manned/or possibly alien inter-galactic travel. To contemplate man travelling to distant stars and their planets, would be out of the question in today's reality. Even in hibernation, man's journey through the galaxies would take too long, the astronaut and the stars he sought would have long died before the craft could reach their destination.

One of the arguments against the probability of planet Earth being visited by ET's is that it would take too long for an alien visitor to reach us. Most people believe for are told by the aliens - ED that any advanced intelligent life, would originate far from Earth, probably many millions of light years away in other Galaxies. So how could UFO's and their alien occupants get here? Well, let us look at man on Earth for a moment. To do this we need to use representative situations.

As we drive, someone may decide to jump in front of our car, The chances are, we will have stopped in enough time not to hit the jumper. However, if we did collide with the pedestrian, it is not the speed of light factor that would have caused the accident. The speed of light would be classed as instantaneous, the time factor of light travel would not make any difference to the outcome. Let us look at this concept further.

Two men sat each side of a table. Although there is only a metre of space between them, they both live in slightly different space-time.

Man "A" looks at man "B". Man "A" sees Man "B" in "B's" history, as some time will lapse as light travels from Man "B" to man "A". The same obviously applies the other way around.

Man "A" lives in his own time, and man "B" lives in his own time, but do they?

Lets take a closer look at man "A"

"A" decides to prove that he indeed lives in his own time. He pinches one of his legs. Yes he is alive as he feels the pain but also it appears to him that the visual and the feeling of physical pain is all in his own time, his NOW. But this is not strictly true!

The feeling of pain takes time to travel from the pinched leg to the brain and then another time delay as translation in the brain to become thought of pain. In the same way the visualised pinch also takes time to reach the eye (delayed by speed of Light) and then to the brain and then has to interpreted into thought-pain.

So where on "A's" body could we find a point that would be in unison, in other words, "A's" universal time - "NOW" (A point where an action would simulate a simultaneous thought re-action). I believe mans "NOW" is found in his brain, but not the whole brain. Mans individual "NOW" must be incredibly small - indeed sub-atomic - as the space-time factor is not allowed in the "NOW" equation.

{One could add to this that some brains may for various reasons be working at different speeds and so under certain conditions will perceive things faster or slower - so this further degrades the ability of the human to understand concept of true "NOW" - ED}

It is fact that experiments designed to test theories at the quantum level are affected in some way by the viewer. No matter how remote or removed from the experiment the observer is, he or she (the viewer) affects the outcome of the experiment, even at thought level. {See my end notes - ED}

The Quanta can react to our thoughts, but we as yet consciously cannot react to it. However, in some unconscious way, we already interact with the universal "NOW".

There must be a co-ordinates in our brain, probably at the quantum level, that is our individual NOW! In other words, a point where an action has a simultaneous conscious acknowledgement (An effect and the realisation of the effect would be instantaneous), A UNIFIED NOW!.

It is difficult for man to consciously connect to the point of unified now.

If we say, "Unified and Universal NOW's, what a load of rubbish", we are actually saying that we have no point in time or co-ordinates in space. Which would mean that we do not exist anywhere at any time!

THE ET CONNECTION.

Many people who say that they have communicated with aliens (ETs), have had the impression that the being and craft, have not been the originals, in some way They have said it was more like viewing a double or clone. Aliens themselves have been quoted giving a similar explanation to their existence here.

If an advanced intelligent life form could interact mentally with sub-atomic particles, via their individual "NOW" particles. It would then be possible for an ET to be one with that particle and being one with the particle would automatically at one with all (everything everywhere).

The alien as an intelligence need not travel from his own doorstep to visit or interact with man on Earth.

A blueprint could be sent. This blueprint need not exist in the normal sense as time would not be a factor. At the quantum level they could travel to any part in space/ time instantaneously, including the co-ordinates built into the designed forms i.e. UFO and ET and the pre-arranged space/time co-ordination, ie Earth.

As the building blocks of matter/life are everywhere, enabling the blueprints to be interpreted into UFO and alien, in other words cloned. There is a high possibility that the quanta live in multi-dimensional plains.

What about Man?

It is thought that the quanta exists in other dimensions, where space and time has no barrier. It would be possible for an intelligence, (man or ET.) to know what is happening anywhere in space and at any time and be able to react and inter-react at a conscious state, right back to the big bang! (man may be achieving something like this subconsciously, or in deep meditation) forward to the furthest reaches of space, without any time delay.

Let's take a TV. for instance. The set must be perfectly tuned to the broadcast signal to produce sound and picture. It may be why some people meditate, to gain, what they call, "HIGHER STATES OF CONSCIOUSNESS". These higher states maybe a way of connecting man to his NOW, at some higher level/frequency.

If it is possible for an intelligence to work and interplay at the quantum level, a whole new world begins to open. There is a high possibility that the quanta live in multi dimensional plains. The potential, therefore, to know more than everything is very possible!

NOTHINGS.

The make-up of an atom, as far as we know, is. A very high energy unit, made up of a central nucleus or nuclei and other particles i.e. electrons (plus lots more) separated by vast distances of space - "NOTHING" - very disproportional to the size of the separated specs/wave-forms.

The atoms particles/wavicles are locked in high energy states of possibilities. The lifetime of some of the particles can be just fractions of a second. As the atom is made up of high energy states of mostly nothing, the nothing therefore must be a very important factor at the atomic level and for the whole universe itself (or man would have no trouble in walking through a brick wall).

The NOTHING, or what we now call nothing, must be an ultimate conscious steady energy state. That unifies everything via the less steady (strange/wavicle) quanta.

I am not suggesting, for instance, a lump of rock has intelligence. It is passive a part of the universal now. Man in Passive and active. Rock cannot stimulate an action on the quantum level. It does, however, passively react within the universal communication frequency to achieve the universal NOW/ALL KNOWLEDGE.

"NOTHING", I believe, must be the controlling factor over the seemingly chaotic state of the nature of the quanta.

Some people believe that the Earth is crossed by inter-connecting lay-lines. I go further than this and believe everything, everywhere, is connected by passive and active inter-connected conscious grid, which lives in what we perceive as nothing! An all knowing, universal intelligent NOW/NO-TIME.

There must be levels/degrees of consciousness to the point of mans NOW.

Man now, is reaching some of the levels that lead to the point of his unified NOW.

Even lower levels, are enabling man to achieve paranormal abilities: Faith Healing, Remote Viewing, Telepathy, Prayer, Mediums,

The possibilities at NOW: Teleportation, Time Travel (instantaneous).

Perhaps ET's, if they are visiting our world, would be using thought instead of equations and high powered rockets/ machines. This is direction man must think if he truly wishes to break through the time/ light barrier. Man is already one with the universe/everything, he just doesn't know it yet.

Love - Ozzie Boulter.

Matthew Williams - Editors Notes:

It is true that when experiments are carried out into Quantum Physics - specifically in the area of Quark research where this effect was first observed - it has been shown that the viewer has the ability to make certain apparent physical phenomena appear, namely quarks. These quarks do not seem to appear when the viewer or experimenter is not looking for them. This seems like science fiction.

On another level it has shown that the power of the mind is also capable of affecting the results of random number generation (also seemingly random events) . Computers or devices which are programmed with random number generation will produce a stream of non-patterned numbers all day long. You then introduce a human into the experiment who tries to affect the numbers which are being produced. Over a period of time it is shown that there are higher concentrations of hits on those numbers. This is not chance - this is science.

This effect works with animals too. A random moving robot with a light on it's top was placed inside an enclosure. In one corner of the enclosure were baby chicks. The chicks were housed in a light proof compartment so they could not see the randomly moving robot nor it's light. The movements of the robot were recorded and they were perfectly random as one would expect. Chicks like many other animals want and need their mothers near them and respond in their early stages of development to any moving light source which they see as a parent/mother. When the light shield was removed from the chicks so they could observe the randomly moving robot with it's light, that the chicks would move towards the glass in their compartment thinking that their mother was on the other side. The chicks wanted and wished their mother to come closer to them. The effect was to see the robot move in the vicinity of the chicks far more times than random chance would allow. Again a scientific experiment.

So the power of the mind for animals and humans does affect the universe we live in - can and does affect what we would otherwise think of as being random events. This means that thinking about something more and more can give that thing a better chance of happening. This concept is taught in magic schools - that one can will something to happen if one has enough determination of will.

What does all of this say for reality, our world and how we view it. Our reality and will changes the universe we live in. Also in a collective sense this must mean that we affect other people and large groups of people may also affect the fabric of the universe that we live in. Cause and effect therefore goes much further than we could ever have thought possible and perhaps we should be careful what we think.

Also what does it mean if we do have an ability to affects reality outside of our bodies. Does this mean that we exist or move outside of our bodies in a subtle fashion (perhaps even that we create our own reality). If you start asking these sorts of questions one inevitably comes into the deep domain of spirituality.

My ET connection.

I have believed in a hypothesis that ETs and UFOs are perhaps, in part, created by humans as a by product of unknown mental potentials. It is possible that real UFOs and aliens exist also. Perhaps people who think about UFOs cause them to exist. This could be the same with aliens and possibly also alien abductions. This to a skeptic is wonderful news because it would seem like I am saying that UFOs and aliens are just a product of the mind or imagination. Not so! Indeed it may be that the power of the mind is capable of creating this things in physical reality and that the creations could even live on outside the initial creative thought.

What evidence is there to support this theory. We know that ghosts have been created by paranormal researchers willing the ghost into existence and that the ghost has carried on after the researchers have left. A very famous case known as the Philip case illustrates this.

We also know that people who have witnessed quite explainable events such as Rocket Launches have misinterpreted the sighting as a UFO and have apparently become apparent transmitters of the perceived paranormal experience because many people had visions of UFOs, Virgin Mary, Comets etc. away from the sighting area but at exactly the same time as the rocket launch.

Experiments by UFO researchers to call down UFOs and control them by power of the mind or will have been achieved by CSETI (Centre for Study Of Extraterrestrial Intelligence). The big question to CSETI is, can the power of the mind "send a message" for the UFO or does the UFO get created by the power of the mind... Perhaps part of the answer to this is found by UFO researchers who have willed UFOs to be seen - not just called (as per Lucien Morgan, London based UFO researchers, own experiments. Lucien has featured in previous issues of Truthseekers).

Is it even possible that by power of the mind we can even be the creators of the alien races which now abduct us. Lucien Morgan thinks so. He believes that if we will these things to happen they will happen. He also believes that if we stop being so preoccupied by Aliens, that they would go away. Perhaps it is a case of would we need to de-create them. However I see another problem in all of this. If we create the aliens and they truly do exist - if they wished, they could de-create us by the same powers of mind that we used to create them. The plot goes on and on.

Tim Cassidy (also featured in this issue) is convinced that he created an addition (termed as a grape shot) to the "Julia" crop circle at Stonehenge last year. He was so convinced that when he came over from the US to verify his knowledge he was drawn to the spot where the addition was to appear. His insistence on this happening though his power of will whilst involved in a mind experiment in meditation, borders on aggressiveness - and I believe him. I'm afraid not too (only kidding Tim!).

In reading Ales's article (this issue) carefully you can draw parallels between what Ozzie has said in his article and Ales's theory - that all that exists is here and now - past, present and future are all the same and all things are connected. I could ask myself how all these things continually come together when I write this magazine - how it all fits neatly in place. Well perhaps I'm drawing these things towards me. Perhaps you are drawing these articles towards you.

Still, lets not get too deep or philosophical - else we will go mad. Ozzie - your a bit of a genius.

Y o u r S a y

The following is an article on UFOs that I recently wrote and sent in to the South Wales Echo for them to print in their section called "Your Say". On contacting the Echo I was pleased to learn that they had chosen my article for publication and a few days after they sent a photographer to take my picture to go along with my write up. Almost a month later they printed my article on March 31st. I was happy with the result apart from one thing, the one incident that I had quoted regarding a mid air collision between a UFO and a plane had suddenly become over one hundred incidents. Once again we have a classic example of the media totally getting it wrong, is it such a hard task for them to get something correct?, obviously it is. Regardless of this error on their behalf it was good of them to print my write up.

"Your Say" - UFOs by Chris Fowler

The phenomena of UFOs has become a very popular interest with people during the last few years, partly due to the success of programmes such as the X-Files and Dan O'Neil has ridiculed the subject on a number of occasions in the Echo. People are still continuing to debate whether or not such things really do exist, unfortunately most of these people (at least within the media) are unaware and apathetic to what is really going on and the quality of the evidence that there now is.

What a lot of people do not seem to realise is that the belief in UFOs that many people have is not a belief based on faith, which is what many religions are based upon. The fact is that most people's belief in the UFO phenomenon is based upon evidence, which is what it is all about. If it were not for UFO evidence I would not believe in such things myself, though regardless it is perfectly rational to believe that Earth is not the only planet where intelligent life evolved. Most UFO sightings have a very rational down to earth explanation (such as planets, the aurora borealis, aircraft landing lights etc.), but there are many which completely defy any explanation.

These unexplained UFOs seem to cause people to behave in a very irrational way, when some scientists are confronted with compelling evidence for UFOs, they seem to forget what science is all about. People like astronomer Patrick Moore will tell you that all talk of UFOs is "rubbish", labelling all people who believe in such things as "the crazy gang". Such members of this "crazy gang" who believe in and have seen UFOs include pilots (some of the best trained observers), astronauts, astronomers (including Dr. Clyde Tombaugh who discovered Pluto in 1930, who is a good friend of Patrick Moore), policemen, presidents, the list goes on. Such people's testimony can not be taken lightly. Remember that eyewitness testimony can send a person to prison, why then is this not good enough when it comes to UFOs?

I suggest that the problems that people have with accepting UFOs does not lie with the evidence, it lies within the individual. A statement by a scientist that UFOs are creations of the mind is not going to suddenly make the mark on the ground caused by a UFO heal up and vanish.

If all the available evidence for UFOs was examined by a jury, the decision would be unanimous. There have been thousands of cases where physical evidence has been left after a UFO has been seen, hundreds of cases where UFOs have turned up on Radar and literally thousands of video tapes of sightings (around 5000 of which have been taken in Mexico alone since 1991). As well as this there have even been a small number of cases where UFOs have collided in mid air with aircraft. One such incident occurred over Mexico City on July 28th 1994 which resulted in the shock absorber being torn off a commercial airliner. The UFO involved in this collision was also witnessed by many and video taped as it hovered over the city, it was later confirmed on Radar by air traffic control. Though such incidents do not prove that UFOs are of an extraterrestrial origin, it does nevertheless prove 100% that such things are real physical objects. This is an inescapable fact.

Now that we know that UFOs are real, we now have to ask the question "who do these objects belong to?" Either they are of a military origin, or they are of a non human origin. To say that they are military we then have to also take on the belief that some government on Earth has secretly developed a technology that overcomes the problems associated with gravity. This is evident because some UFOs have been seen to perform manoeuvres that we could not do (as demonstrated by the video and Radar footage).

If this is not the case then we have to examine the possibility, a very uncomfortable one for many, that they have come from elsewhere and belong to a non human intelligence. It may in fact be the case that some of the people who claim to have had contact with non human people (in events that are now known as 'alien abductions') have been telling the truth and are not deluded or suffering from sleep paralysis. Is it not merely a coincidence that the same objects people report that these beings come from are identical to the objects that are turning up on video film and Radar?

Either conclusion we wish to come to, we, as a whole, are no doubt being very foolish by not paying serious attention to UFOs. John Major has recently been asked by more than one MP if he would allocate resources to evaluating UFO sightings, his reply was that "The government have no plans to allocate resources to researching extraterrestrial phenomena." One would think that they would be concerned when even the MoD's own files (held in the Public Records Office) contain reports that confirm the reality of UFOs. One such report from West Freugh concerns an unidentified object detected on Radar that was estimated to be the size of a small ship. Perhaps the government's lack of public concern indicates that behind the scenes they are indeed looking in to such things?

Another prospect we are facing is the possibility that the current history of our civilisation is vastly wrong. Work by the American researcher John A. West has conclusively proved that the Sphinx in Giza, Egypt may be as old as 12,000 years, a date that precedes civilisation. Work by Robert Bauval (author of 'The Orion Mystery') also seems to show that the three great pyramids may also be this old and to top it all off very large stone buildings have been discovered off the coast of Japan under 100ft. of water. The last time this was dry land was over 10,000 years ago. These findings will surely (and have already) cause great dismay to many people, just as UFOs do. Again, the problem does not lie with the findings, it lies within the people.

The bottom line is that what we are taught, is not necessarily what really is. The process of changing how we view the world and ourselves is a very hard one, just as it was back in 1543 when Copernicus' book 'On The Revolution Of Celestial Spheres' was first published.

MENWITH HILL

INTERVIEW

Matthew Williams
on the road

A candid interview with Jenny - a protestor at a super secret US spy base on UK territory. What are the US doing there and how do the protestors operate... we find out now....

Matthew Williams: What is the average age of people here at the camp?

Jenny: I am the youngest who lives here, I'm 18, and the oldest who lives here, well I'm not going to say her real age, but she's in her 50's. She has been here permanently for the whole three years that the peace camp has been existence. Her life is the campaign.

MW: How long have you been protesting about the base?

J: I have been living at this peace camp for three months and I have been coming here since last July. I have been involved in the peace movement from a very early age. I became actively involved since last April. As I say I was involved in the Selafield Anti Nuclear campaign, we were having a completely peaceful campaign and there were these 4 police officers who came and beat the shit out of us.

MW: Was it a bad beating? Did they use truncheons?

J: Well none of us ended up in hospital or anything, but we had bruises and cuts. They didn't use truncheons, just brute force. That's the thing which makes it worse, is that we are a women's campaign and we are completely non-violence and they were male police offers, beating the shit out of us.

MW: How does Menwith Hill and it's "golf balls" compare to somewhere like the super secret Pine Gap facility in Australia.

J: This place does more than Pine Gap, yet the security here is absolutely appalling. We regularly break in. It's something we can do and get away with. At Pine Gap and any of the other similar 28 bases, you can't get anywhere near them. There are many other similar bases such as Wyhopy in New Zealand, Japan, Bad Eibeling (spelling?) in Germany, MW: Have you had any other harassment?

J: Yes things ranging from sabotage of the camp, to people throwing things from cars at us. The window you see there (points) is no longer a window because somebody hurled a bottle through it and we think that was the police! We have had things stolen and we have even been firebombed. When we have been actually in the base, doing actions, we have been assaulted by base staff and the latest thing is a woman called Tracy has had her house raided by the police because she got arrested for something and the police found her diary. So they found out things about her and raided and she is going to be severely reprimanded under the official secrets act for borrowing documents.

MW: What is this road painting - something about people being run over and killed on the lay-by?

J: Oh yes, that, well its not real. What happened is that one night last September some women were here and a police van drove in and tried to run some of them over. So the next night we laid out some dummies in the road and dressed them in the same clothes as we would wear and made it as realistic as you could. It was very realistic actually. The police drove over them and didn't stop to see if they were real people or not. So we drew the silhouettes of people in the road to signify that event and we said "Rest In Peace Sisters" A lot of people think it's real so it gives the MODS a bad name.

MW: What do you mean by MODS?

J: Ministry Of Defence Police, we call them MODS.

MW: Do the protesters know who these police are? Do they know where they live and would they try to get them back for their nasty actions against you?

J: We are on first or last name terms with them. We know who they all are. The most vindictive one is Sgt Quinn, and he's a complete bastard. He's really nasty. For instance, we were infiltrated last year by a peace woman. She came to stay but unfortunately she was a bit mentally unstable and the police got to know about this so they checked her out. The police worked on her and got her to infiltrate the camp. She's now been sectioned. It was Quinn who instigated all of that so he really fed up this woman's life for his own uses, which is really horrible. We don't want to use violence against the police though so they get away with things like this.

MW: What is the layout and set up of the base. What is it for?

J: It is a telecommunications interception base. There are currently 24 "golf balls" and the 25th and 26th are currently being built. Each "golf ball" has a radar/satellite dish in it. Most of them collect information - every time someone uses their phone it goes through there. The Echelon Dictionary system picks up certain key words and key numbers and is triggered and then prints these details out onto magnetic tape so that operators can listen to the information and can go over it to see if there is anything important in it. They spy on market researchers, trade unions, individuals and then terrorists etc. They say that they do it because of the terrorism side of things but that's complete crap. They are more interested in the economics and individuals than on terrorists.

MW: What is the proof of all of this taking place. I am aware that certain evidence exists to show that UK businesses have been spied on by the US at this facility - can you explain some of the things proving that it happens.

J: There is documentary proof of it having taken place. Before the bylaws were in place, you could easily get into the base and go right up to the golf balls. The women had got inside buildings and stolen documents and got out again. These people who got onto the base would then get caught and escorted off the base and many times they had still managed to keep the top-secret documents. They then worked out what was on the documents. A television program was made of this called "The Hill", by Duncan Campbell who is an investigative journalist. It was shown on Channel 4 in 1992.

They took loads of documents for that program and then gave them back about 15 minutes before the program was due to go to air, so it could not be classed as theft, because if you give something back it is not theft. I don't know exactly what was in those documents but I was told they showed proof of those things - it was before my time on the campaign.

MW: I am interested in this Bylaw business. This seems strange, how does it work?

J: Just because it was there was no way of stopping you going on the base, because it does not register as a trespass as long as you leave when you are asked to. It is a different matter if you do criminal damage or something else like taking documents etc., then it's an offence. The reason it is called

RAF Menwith Hill is so that they could prevent people from even going on to the base and exposing the crimes which are going on there. This is why we are going to court to challenge the validity of the Bylaws. The way this works is that they are being called to answer claims that the Bylaws were created just to stop the women protesters going on the base.

MW: Is it a strong case? What is the link pin in it all?

J: If the justice system is a fair and just justice system, then we would win but those Bylaws were created just for the purpose of stopping protesters going onto the base. They were made in bad faith because it is not a real RAF base, there are no runways, no RAF personnel except one token person who is not allowed into the base security sections because he does not have a high enough security classification, so it's not a real RAF base at all. They said that it was a RAF base.

By calling it RAF Menwith Hill people don't ask questions, and another thing is that by seeing the "golf balls" and having them nicknamed as such makes the whole purpose of the base seem really trivial, it sort of makes it into a game, something that even sounds fun. It's all so much more sinister than that.

MW: Have you got any inside sources or people on the inside who are feeding you information about what is going on?

J: No we don't have anybody now. In the past there was a woman who worked there, who appeared on the documentary - "The Hill" - who came out about the base because of what she saw going on there

The thing is though that anyone else may not know what is going on there because of the compartmentalisation of information, people only know their own little bit and they are not allowed to know outside their bit. It is a bit like the forces - they are completely brainwashed and are trained not to ask any questions.

MW: Do you get any women police officers at Menwith Hill?

J: There has to be a token police woman on each shift in case of arrests, but they don't seem to do very much. The women police officers in general seem quite nice and chatty.

MW: Were any women police officers witness to violence to protesters at Menwith? Do you think they would try and stop the male violence towards you.

J: Well they don't seem to be around that much so they haven't seen what goes on. I think they would, I mean I hope they would stop violence towards us if they saw it.

MW: What is the security like at the base? Do you need a lot of ID to get inside and work there?

J: You only have security clearance to the area that you are working in, so they cannot move around very freely - that's all I know.

This is "Tinkerbell", British Telecoms interception station for all fiber optic communications in the UK. On the A5 road outside Oswestry, Shropshire - all trunk line calls outside of a local area will apparently pass through this facility.

Like Menwith Hill, staff here monitor calls and there must be direct links from this outstation and other UK listening posts such as GCHQ. Do we have any rights to privacy in the UK?

MW: What sort of security do they have there? It seems like there are an awful lot of cars parked there and not a lot of above ground space to house all the working people who might be there.

J: A lot of people have come up here and said that they do work underground. I have been near the bunker entrances which would suggest that there are underground facilities in the area. I think there could be some facilities there.

MW: Are you aware of any emergency tunnels or entrances that could be off site but connected to the base - perhaps another way for you to get into the base, perhaps?

J: No I am not aware of any but it's an interesting thought.

MW: Are there any environmental issues with the base being there - can any government people or officials come and check out the base?

J: No one is allowed on the base, members of parliament are not allowed on the base - journalists aren't allowed on the base - parliamentary questions aren't supposed to be asked on all of this.

MW: How do they get away with not having to answer parliamentary questions on the base?

J: I do not know how they get around it, but they are getting around it pretty well at the moment. It is all to do with the American/British allegiance that seems to exist whereby we are good friends from the war, and perhaps we wouldn't have won the war without Americas help, so it's almost as if we owe them a favour, so the Government doesn't want to ask many questions of them.

Also America has world dominance - that's obvious. So this may mean that Britain wants to stay friends with them otherwise we could lose out.

MW: So what has happened to MPs when they have asked questions.

J: A very interesting thing was that a Labour MP called Bob Cryer who was an MP for Bradford. He was asking very embarrassing questions in Parliament about this base and two weeks after he started asking those questions he was killed in a mysterious car crash. He was doing investigations into the base also. That is quite interesting.

MW: Can you explain a little further.

J: He was driving on a motorway and he had just come out of a service station and he was with his wife. His wife says that he wasn't tired and didn't appear to be acting strange and there was nothing unusual about the situation. She says that she heard an explosion and then their car crashed. The investigation said that he must have fallen asleep and gone out of control but his wife definitely remembers this explosion sound.

MW: What sorts of things won't you do in your fight against the base?

J: We don't use violence and we won't use arson. Arson puts lives at risk so we don't use it.

MW: Why is it so open, why didn't they try to hide the base away somewhere?

J: It's high up. Perhaps this makes it easier to intercept stuff - I don't know about the technicalities of that though. It's away from everything like a landmark or anything, so there is no reason for the public to be near it. Although it is very obvious when you drive past it, if you don't drive past it, you won't know it exists.

MW: What sorts of things have you done yourself.

J: I climbed one of the radio masts in January and stayed up there for 3 hours. It was broad daylight and there were 30 police officers there and media and everything. There was me sat up on top of this 100 foot radio mast going "No I'm not going to come down". So that was to get the media involved. We got it on TV and were desperate to get on TV and in the media because then people can get to find out about it. In fact we have a mailing list of over 800 people to send mail to on developments at the base.

MW: What sort of non arson type action have people taken out on the base.

J: There is a system called the "Pusher" system which is a radio system. I don't quite know what it does. It has been sabotaged literally hundreds of times. People go in with bolt cutters and cut the wires. Also one of the "golf balls", which are also known as "Radomes" were entered and smash up completely.

We also use Hammerite paint, which is metallic based and affects the performance of the radio snooping. It blocks the signals, basically as much sabotage as we can do. Getting caught for it has it's consequences though.

MW: Another way you could sabotage it would be to transmit on the frequencies they are listening to - by using jamming gear. Has this ever been done - jamming the sensitive signals they are trying to sniff from the airwaves.

J: That would be a good idea. I think we will have to look into that. We are always looking into new ways of doing things, because every time you do something that is effective then they will try to stop it and bring in laws to stop it.

Just to note, since 1994, 18 women have been imprisoned for this campaign. Its going up all the time. The longest sentence was 6 months which she served 3 months. The shortest are like overnight stays. The most common cause of going to prison is for non payment of fines because we say that we are not guilty of anything, because what we are doing is not a crime, it is to expose a greater crime. I would rather be in prison because of my beliefs than free because of my apathy. So I am quite prepared to go to prison. Its quite scary but...hmmmm...

MW: Do you have any male supporters, or is it just women.

J: Oh yes we do have male supporters but it's a women only camp. Males are not allowed to stay overnight, that's all, we let males visit during the day of course.

MW: What's the cut off time.

J: Dark - as soon as it gets dark. There are loads of reasons for it being women only, I won't go into some of them because I don't want to insult you. When you get men in a group it tends to go hierarchical, and in our group everything is done on an equal basis - what each woman does is as important as the next.

So we four who live here are no more important than the 20 or so people who support us by bringing us water and washing our clothes etc. and they are no more important than the people on the mailing list, who support us by spreading the word or donating, or even sending us stamps.

Another reason for the women thing is the non-violence thing, a lot of men are not into non violence. Another reason is that the police are already violent to us but they are even more violent when men are around because they see it as a challenge.

MW: Back to the needy points - what do you know about the NSA and UFOs and this base?

J: I don't really know anything about UFOs myself but a lot of the people who come here say they see UFOs in the area and it is some form of "Hotspot". It could be because the NSA is involved, who knows? (laughs) The NSA are supposed to be interested in that sort of thing I think.

MW: Do you make use of video on your raids or actions?

J: When they were making the documentary "The Hill" they all had video cameras, but I don't think they have since then. I think we should do but it's just one extra thing to get confiscated that's all. It's just easier to not take anything on with you.

If people need any information on what they can do and cannot do over there, where the "invisible" boundary is and what the Bylaws are, they can call in here and we will tell them. A lot of the stuff with getting arrested is not that bad, it's not a big thing and it won't be on your record for the rest of your life.

MW: Next to Menwith Hill is a little known other base. What do you know about that one?

J: That one is called "Forest Hill" and is a Royal Navy station. They say that it is just a radio station to help communicate with the fishing fleets and help the fishermen, but we have more documented evidence which was borrowed from there which links it with Trident Nuclear Missiles and subs and stuff. We don't have a campaign against that place because we are focusing our attention on Menwith.

MW: Well thank you for the interview and good luck with your efforts in exposing the base.

J: Thanks.

The NSA (National Security Agency) is an offshoot of the CIA (Central Intelligence Agency). Designed primarily as a signals and intelligence gathering agency it has found itself getting actively involved in forefront operations and counter-espionage. This involves sending out agents to do the dirty-work.

In the UK it is confirmed as fact that NSA have used the information gathered from intercepted phone calls of UK businesses to benefit the corporate interests of US high level businesses.

Are such money and commercial losses acceptable to the UK government who allowed the US on to our soil in this manner?

The Reticulans

CONTACTEE VIEWPOINT

Welcome to a new regular column by Jonathan Hurst & Janice Jackman, founder-members of Truthseekers West Yorkshire. Both have written for TSR before, and in this section will keep you informed of perspectives learnt from their ET contacts and experiences.

THE RETICULANS - written by Jonathan Hurst

It was around 2am on Saturday, 5th April 1997. Jan and I were both asleep. Suddenly Jan was awoken by something that touched her hand, dangling off the side of the bed. She opened her eyes to see the room filled with light, and a figure standing beside the bed looking down at her. The entity was about 5'5" tall, wearing a white and gold gown, with long arms and a large head. On closer inspection, she noticed it had white skin, a small nose and mouth, huge slanted eyes with golden irises, and wispy white hair. Its head was surrounded by a luminescent aura.

The creature looked at Jan with a serene expression on its face. "It is nearly time for the change," it said telepathically.

In her mind Jan could see a spinning triangle, gathering speed and becoming a pyramid. It span so fast that it became invisible. She felt the being was referring to the dimensional shift.

Also in the room, Jan noticed four shorter entities resembling typical Greys. Each moved to a corner of the bed. One of the entities produced a small silver object and placed it inside her head with its bony hand, as though Jan was transparent.

"Don't be afraid, you know what to do," communicated the tall entity.

Next Jan was levitated above the bed, while the creatures moved closer and visually inspected her body. She saw herself reflected in their large eyes, which came startlingly close to her own.

As she descended to the bed, the four short Greys merged into a single entity, which merged with the tall being. It then ascended through the ceiling and was gone.

Jan fell asleep. I remained unconscious throughout the visitation.

The next day, Jan found some blood in her nose but did not immediately remember what had taken place the night before. Later on in the day, she felt tired so took a nap. While lying down, her mind drifted to another place. There she saw a creature that resembled an oversized Praying Mantis, which she has encountered several times before. She already knew its name was Raul.

above. Also, she learnt that the tall entity's name was 'Anraa' and that it (being sexless) was a friend of ours.

A few days later, while in mental communication with Anraa, the entity informed Jan that it was a 235-year-old hybrid (20% human, 30% Reticulan, and 50% Blond Pleiadian) from the future. Also, it had emotions and was not a clone. Apparently, Jan and I had helped in its creation - having donated samples of DNA. Anraa's job consisted of engineering 'etheric transporters and transformers' (whatever that means).

Throughout her life Jan has had encounters with entities we term extraterrestrial. It has never been a big deal. In addition to physical and out-of-body encounters, Jan also has the ability to channel these entities. She is totally unconscious during this process and often remembers being somewhere else. The communicating entity assumes her body totally, as if their own, bringing all of its mannerisms, personality, intellect, knowledge, etc., with them.

Of all the extraterrestrial races in contact with Earth, at this time the Greys seem to be one of the most common. Actually, not all of them have grey skin. Others have been encountered with white skin, beige, red, blue, green, and pink-brown. Thus I prefer to call them Reticulans, as their homeworld can be found in the binary system of Zeta Reticuli.

Throughout the world, in all cultures, people are claiming to be in physical and psychic contact with these entities (not to mention the other ET races). The entities have told many individuals certain details about themselves. I have interviewed numerous contactees, and heard the same story repeatedly. According to the entities, their world and race are dying as a result of severe levels of radiation in their atmosphere.

Through Jan's encounters, mental contact and channelling, I have been researching the history and present agenda of these beings. Below I shall present some of the information we have been told. We are certainly not alone in knowing this information, as you will notice the consistency between what we have been told and many others throughout the world. Some of these other individuals also channel their ET contacts, and books on the Reticulans and other ETs are plenty. Watch out for The Roswell Message, to be published by Gateway Books on 4th July 1997 - the 50th anniversary of the Roswell Incident. The book claims to be channelled from the Greys.

The Origins of the Greys

The Reticulans claim both our races share a common ancestry, as do most humanoid races throughout the universe. At one time, thousands of millennia ago, they were once human like us.

Their planet was very similar to ours, with a rich and varied society. However, the status quo became threatened by a growing alliance based on ideals in contrast to those of the mainstream. This group basically sought global domination - not unlike what many conspiracy researchers believe is happening in our world today.

The conflict culminated with a nuclear war, which devastated the planet and its ecosystem. Many species became extinct and the environment turned very barren and desolate. The human survivors attempted to rebuild their society, but illness was prevalent. They were suffering from many diseases and mutations caused by the abundant traces of radiation. Eventually this forced the survivors to live underground.

One major problem was sterility. More and more of the survivors found themselves sterile, including the offspring of those that weren't. To overcome this, they resorted to cloning - but this only compounded their predicament, as it inbred the DNA.

The Reticulans tried to rescue their dying race through genetic re-engineering. They reduced the height of later generations because of the limited living space underground; originally they were around seven feet tall. Over many thousands of years they became the Grey-type entities we know of today. The change in their eyes was gradual, the pupil became larger and larger as it adjusted to their form of underground light. Today, some Greys have been witnessed with whites in the corner of their eyes. These eyes are not shields as some have postulated, but have no eyelids. Abductees commonly report seeing Grey fetuses that are miniature versions of the adults, with tiny black eyes.

A major alteration they did was with their emotions. They believed emotion played a fundamental part in the breakdown of their society, so they altered their neural pathways to make emotion more monotone and controlled. They came to despise individuality and so developed into a 'hive' mentality. The near-disappearance of emotions allowed them to excel intellectually and therefore scientifically. Thus the size of their craniums increased to house more sophisticated brains.

However, in spite of all the change and re-engineering, the 'counter culture' survived and still exists today. They are colluding with certain governments on Earth and allied with several other ET races that share similar goals and ideals.

Similar to the situation on Earth, a taskforce was sent to the Reticulans' planet in order to help avert the breakdown of their society. These beings incarnated into the Reticulan race before the nuclear war and many remained in the aftermath. This taskforce was sent by the Galactic Council - a board of elders who oversee the evolution of civilisations in this galaxy. Many of this taskforce are now on Earth (including myself and Jan). Also many indigenous Reticulans are now incarnate here, which explains what the Greys mean when abductees are told, "You are one of us."

The Galactic Council saw a great opportunity for a co-evolutionary leap of two races: Earth humanity and the dying race from Zeta Reticuli. As most humanoid races are offshoots of the same genetic tree, the Council permitted the benign Reticulans to involve Earth humans in a genetic experiment. They saw an opportunity where both races could benefit from each other. We could learn from the Reticulans' unusual sense of singular identity, technology, social and ecological turmoil, among other things. They could learn from our unusual individuality, emotions, sexuality, and genetic diversity.

Our rich genetic stock was ideal for their experiment: to crossbreed with another humanoid species, in order to repair the damage inflicted on themselves physically, emotionally and mentally. It would be an extraordinary co-evolution and the resulting hybrid race would be used as a vehicle for the spiritual advancement of both races.

The benign Reticulans did not want to sacrifice their race and incarnate into another, because of its unique qualities: their strong mental powers and intellect, understanding of science and technology. They decided to try and retain as many of their good qualities as possible, while inheriting some from us. It really is a two-way thing.

Unfortunately, their ancient enemies followed them to Earth and also saw what they could gain from us. The difference with them is that they are not interested in co-evolution and are only out for themselves. They came here without permission from the Council and began taking without asking first. The benign Reticulans have said that the Roswell Incident involved two saucers. One ship was piloted by benign Reticulans (pink-brown colour) and the other by negatives (grey colour), the latter on a mission to establish contact with the US government. The positives intercepted the negative ship and attempted to escort it out of our atmosphere. Unfortunately, the ships collided and were both disabled. The positives were all killed, while some of the negatives survived. Despite the tragedy, their mission was a success.

The negative Reticulans (along with other ET races) have formed unofficial treaties with government agencies worldwide. The treaty with America was established in 1954, with the National Security Agency - set-up in 1952 as an extension of Majestic-12. The NSA agreed to give the negative Reticulans concealed asylum (sub-surface bases), freedom to involve a number of US citizens in genetic research, and to cover up any evidence of their presence (until a certain time). In return, the NSA and agency affiliates were to receive scientific information and (flawed) technology. Unfortunately, the negative Greys didn't take the treaties seriously for very long and now do what they please. I believe they made these agreements to avoid the prompt intervention of the Galactic Council - as the Council have to honour our free will.

Normally, all races endeavouring to contact Earth must obtain clearance from the Galactic Council and obey their regulations. At this time, contact must be with selective recipients and not on an open scale. However, some races flout this rule and they are those that are colluding with the Earth governments. Apparently, some of these want to become public and there has been some conflict with our governments, who are not in favour of this at the moment.

The Council are now urging the negative Reticulans, and probably other races, to withdraw from the Earth. Apparently, both sides have satisfied the goals of their projects, and thus Grey abductions appear to be on the decline. Unfortunately, the negative Greys intend to fight off any opposition, and this may lead to an all-out war. If so, we are told that it will occur in an etheric dimension. Of course, the negatives stand no chance against the forces of the Council. But they are extremely arrogant and think the Earth now belongs to them. They see humankind as an inferior and subservient race, along with their many genetically-engineered slave races.

The benign Reticulans are preparing an Earth-like planet in the Orion system, to be the home of their new hybrid species. Apparently, after the year 2000 some humans on Earth will be allowed to migrate to this planet and live alongside the halfling society. But that is another article altogether.

So this is some of what Jan has been told by the benign Reticulans and other races. Believe what you want of this information, we are not out to convert anyone.

If any of you would like to ask us or our ET contacts any questions, please send them to the address below. We will publish the answers in subsequent instalments of this column.

ACCOUNT OF THE BENTWATERS-WOODBRIDGE UFO INCIDENT, IT'S COVER-UP, AND INVESTIGATION

by Larry Warren and Peter Robbins (published by Marlowe & Company). Review by Chris Fowler.

Left At East Gate is the culmination of almost ten years of investigation into the famous Bentwaters UFO incidents by Larry Warren and Peter Robbins. The events occurred nearby the joint USAF/RAF bases of Bentwaters and Woodbridge (now both closed) in Suffolk on the nights of 26th, 27th and 28th of December 1980. Larry Warren at the time was a member of the USAF Security Police and was stationed at RAF Bentwaters. On the night of the 28th he was involved in a UFO incident that occurred around five miles outside of the base.

A few years after the incident and after he had left the USAF, Larry came forward and spoke about what had happened, becoming the first firsthand military UFO witness to do so. After he did so, other witnesses were tracked down who were also involved and the story started to become well known within UFOlogy.

Peter Robbins, an independent UFO researcher and assistant to Budd Hopkins (UFO abduction researcher and author), became involved in investigating both Bentwaters and Larry's claims in 1987 after being approached by Larry who asked if he would co-author a book about Bentwaters. Since then they have both made a number of trips out to the actual UFO site in Suffolk which resulted in physical evidence from the landing site being discovered in the form of altered soil, just like many other reported UFO landing sites. The book describes in detail all aspects of what Larry experienced and it also deals with the US government's involvement with the incident and the witnesses to the events.

The Bentwaters incidents have been referred to as the UK equivalent of the Roswell incident that occurred back in 1947 and are no doubt just as significant as UFO events go. This book is a long time overdue and is a must read for anyone seriously interested in the UFO phenomenon and government involvement. The UK release date for the book is May 23rd and both Larry Warren and Peter Robbins will be in the UK around the time lecturing on the Bentwaters incidents.

Tim Casady

From Cults To Crop Circles

An interview with Matthew Williams

Tim Casady is a man with a mission. He is over from the states and wants to tell us about the significance of the crop circles and his personal involvement in influencing the "circle makers" with the power of his mind.... Though in this interview he tells us about Indian prophecies and where we must take more care in our beliefs of such prophecies. Whereas many conspiracy researchers tell us about events from the outside in this article Tim gives us his insight into prophecy givers and saucer "cults". It is an insight which may shock some New Age believers because it deals with so called Hopi Indian con men and dogmatists.

Before Tim starts the interview he gives an Indian drumming ceremony, which has quite a powerful effect on the mood and energy of the listener.

Matthew Williams: You are going to talk a little with us about UFO cults, specifically ones you have a direct involvement with - the people and how they get entwined and what is behind these. You have given me some information on a man named Paul Solem & Quotsvongha. What is your own perspective on this man and his group?

Tim Casady: This Paul Solem episode is quite an interesting one in the whole corpus and wanderings of the Hopi Indian prophecy. The reason I think it is so interesting and important to UFOlogy is because Paul Solem was not only a so called UFO expert but he claimed to be able to call down UFOs on command and some UFOs did arrive when and where Solem predicted. So his interactions with the Hopis were amidst a series of UFO events. I am not sure exactly how these would stand out in the whole field of UFOlogy, but in terms of the man trying to take credit for predicting UFOs Solem stands out as a more unusual character.

The long and short of it is that he showed up around 1969 and 1970 and told the Hopi Indians that he had some special religious knowledge. This was part of his entree. He wasn't so much a researcher or an abductee as he was a neo-Mormon. He claimed esoteric knowledge of a new wave of Mormonism. Mormonism exists locally around these Indians, and next door in Utah and Nevada too. So the Indians are very familiar with Mormonism in this area and in fact some of the Indians are Mormons.

Mr Solem combined a spiritual and a "nuts and bolts" UFO invasion claim - a reworking of an already known native Indian prophecy which dovetailed with their feelings and beliefs. Solem then predicted four more visitations after some success with the sightings that he seemed to have been able to engineer. An Indian high priest was involved bringing people down there to see the visitations and got a large group of people into the area. Then there was much consternation when the UFOs didn't show up. By the second Sunday morning, one week later, Mr Solem had managed to bail out and by the fourth Sunday morning nobody was bothering to drive out to the landing site. So after this the high priest then retired in the aftermath of being called insane and the like.

In Hopi Indian traditions there are different elements of their myths and their cultural beliefs about leadership positions of politics and holding office relating to a persons failure and what you should do if you do fail. The ideas suggest things like: if you fail perhaps you should chop your head off - that sort of thing. So this sort of move by the priest to retire was therefore culturally correct. The power vacuum then shifted around and the upshot of this all is that Mr Solem came in with his wild prophecies and they didn't come true and the high priest was sucked in so he then had to resign. After the priest stepped down two new individuals stepped in to take his place as "leading spokesman".

All these events were written about and chronicled by a man named A W Geertz. The two new spokesmen were Thomas Banancya is still alive and pushing this type of campaign. The other was a person called David Monongya These two are the types who would have been active on the tour scene and visited different countries to try and sell the prophecy idea to other people -they were still trying to push the story. Banancya was interviewed about many similar ideas and was interviewed ,for instance, on last years comet and this years Hale Bopp comet. They wanted him to make some doom and gloom prophecy about it and to see if he had some special knowledge of it's arrival. This is where I part company with some of this Indian prophecy information - it's what I call the "Doom and gloom syndrome".

Over here you might not know quite how much of a role that the Hopi Indian prophecy plays but back home in the US you will find hundreds of supposedly knowledgeable Indians and whites leaning on the Hopi prophecy as one of the main tenets of their doom and gloom story; Then some will go even further and produce something else to add to the story - something which is of even lesser quality and use the Hopi Indian "credibility" to back it up. This is the situation that we are in still in today with layer after layer of new "Hopi" prophecy of gloom and doom. Recently for example Chet Snow, a US crop circle researcher, has become a Hopi Indian expert and added his own doom spin.

MW: What seems important though in part was, did Paul Solem bring those first UFOs and then they failed to come back? Was it actually him that managed to call them or was it just a chance happening and he was an opportunist?

TC: I don't have a great deal of evidence to prove or disprove any of that although somewhat involved. I was there myself when all of this happened, I was not exactly aware of what was going on. I was seeing and trying to make a sense of who was actually in charge and see what was going on in the mess. The Hopi Indians were negotiating with me about using various images of UFOs, with images of me 9 months pregnant as a "Katchina clown". I know that they had it in their mind and were presenting UFOs in the inner circles before any of these events took place. As I say they were negotiating with me on the imagery that should be used in 1969. There was some upset and falling out between me and the Hopi Indians and so I am suspicious that the Hopi Indians were not planning for it alone. This raises an interesting question or two. I think wherever the plans came from that the military provided the "nuts and bolts" craft to make Mr Solems prophecy come partly true. This is my angle on things and is my first choice of answers as to how this happened. I think this was a con job and a stupendous set up.

MW: It seemed that the desired effect may have been to make people lose faith in UFOs and to destabilise the Hopi Indian high priest and perhaps engineer a false prophecy to take people off the path, and slander the Hopi Indians. What do you think?

TC: I don't think Solem deviated from the plan and he was in fact meant to fail. This doesn't mean that it was a failure totally for the Hopi Indians, because in fact they have a different concepts in their religious concepts of "holy clowns" and this means that sometimes they accept that they will be played with in this manner and this is acceptable. They may have even had some good faith in making fun of themselves - that's the way they are. Their image of me, a Katchina doll of the "distracter" clown type and the Mickey Mouse aliens (standing next to the Katchina doll) comes from their holy humour philosophy.

MW: Didn't Paul Solem describe the aliens that were flying the craft as being from Venus? Did he also say that they look just like us? Had they come to this idea through divine guidance from Solem or was it part of a longer standing tradition?

TC: They are trying to make up all sorts of things into their religion at the moment to justify their claim that they have land rights - it's a 400 million dollar law suit and in fact they weren't there first on the land, the land belonged to the Diné (better known as the Navaho) people. Still they do have some beliefs about people who they say come from the sky and these people bring rain and the like. Its hard to tell accurately because these beings were based more on a seasonal tradition, they were the rainmakers and they would come during one season and leave during the next.

Nobody can really say whether or not they ever saw these sky beings coming down in this way or what they were doing. However when it comes to Paul Solems involvement, suddenly these sky beings are coming down and giving all sorts of messages about atom bombs and the UN and aliens. This is the sudden ultra modern part of the spin on Hopi "Katchinas of 'Sky Beings'".

To look at it more carefully the Hopi Indian looked towards Geertz, a professional anthropologist who had lived with them for seven years. Their complaint was that those two men I mentioned earlier, Banyana and Monague had failed after the 1970 disaster with the UFOs not arriving. They felt that these two had made up a whole load of new stuff which was designed specifically for the hippies and had nothing really to do with their tradition. The Hopi Indians are worried that this new sort of banter has been created for a wide audience. The Hopi Indians are well aware of this but the whites unfortunately aren't!

This is a situation which may be the same in Wales or Europe, whereby somebody from another country can come along and bring claims of a prophecy and show you something/tell you something - what do you say to them. For instance if an Indian was to come over and say look at this crop circle cave painting we have in our caves, then shows you a slide photo of a diagram of something painted in a cave and you have the same crop circle, what do you say... The Indian tribes are well aware of this kind of ability to manipulate and going on not just overseas but closer to home, from tribe to tribe.

A guy named Morning Star reckoned that his grandfather found a downed alien craft and recovered live alien bodies from it, so we have a kind of Roswell in reverse playing the circuit at the moment. By his own say so apparently the CIA are out to kill him and all sorts of other things and this is why he doesn't show up on the circuit from time to time. We keep on getting these kinds of ideas and people springing up on the circuit from time to time. Last year we had a star nations conference, billed as the Indians giving away all their secret knowledge of the stars. It was a pretty thin soup I can tell you...

MW: What about Qotshongva's, the high priest of 1950 to 1970? He was peddling this information - what was his angle?

TC: I don't know how he was playing it or if he made money. What was certain is that he was selling a kind of "the aliens are invading" type of story. The Indians have a tendency to come out with stories which seem to tell people the way they should be behaving and trying to clean the world up. This story involved a white man who was supposed to come as the messiah and alien powers that he would bring with him He claimed that it was the aliens who were the great force and they were here to shake us up and purify our hearts.

Thomas Banyaka is the only one from the original story who is still alive. He was a translator and was brought in to interpret the messages of the other Indians who could not speak American so well. He completely took over the interpretation of these events for the benefits of the hippies. Banyaka had no traditional tribal ties prior to his involvement in these prophecies.

The prophecy thing started back in 1947 with four other figures who came out of nowhere and claimed that they had information which had been passed down through the centuries which related to the house of mica, which was a centre of world power and the atom bomb. Well the house of mica they referred to was claimed to be the United Nations building which was indeed a centre of world power. As far as anyone can find out none of those elements existed at any time before 1947, until these group of four created them. Geertz summarised that this was a much more effective prophecy because it had accurate elements in it but of course this was because it was created after the events!!!

Banyaka and Monague then hit the high wave of New Age with the hippies in around 1970 in the United States. They got a pretty good tour. There wasn't much Hopi traditionalism about their conduct or anything else.

MW: So were they after money or was it really a conspiracy with sinister overtones?

TC: I think it was not only government led but also there were also some esoteric reasons behind it too. I think for someone, playing ball with the Hopi Indian's had some deep spiritual meaning to it. They wanted these people as spiritual puppets. I think the esoteric elements in white society who were responsible for this must be taken into consideration. Whether they were the Freemasons or the remnants of the Nazi's or whatever. Whoever it is, who was playing the game, wanted to manipulate a religion. What you did notice is that some money was changing hands. You did notice some of these prophets had two storey concrete block homes whilst their neighbours were living in trailers.

I think that part of the goal was to get control of the elements that were being displayed in front of the new age crowd. The interest in paganism and Indians has been very well massaged by the government. It appears about half of the professional Indians on the circuit are involved and I can suggest that any who use the pattern of doom and gloom are involved or those who give UFO stories - this all shows they are cut out of a government mould.

MW: So what other organisations or religions have been infiltrated?

TC: The corruption of the Navaho tribal council is fairly well known. They had a president of their tribal government who was impeached in 1987/88 when they charged him with inciting a riot when he was miles away. He was framed. They accused him of starting the riot. Now he is in prison and in solitary confinement and there have been calls to President Clinton to take him out of solitary confinement. The three following Navaho presidents have been set up and involved in scandals. If you follow the Indian scene closely you can see that there have been problems within other tribes too.

A high up member of the Sioux tribe and founder member of the radical Indian group A.I.M. got into trouble. The government got involved in beating up and even murdering some members of that group. If you see how they became involved in the years that followed you can see how some of them got turned and some got into trouble and jailed. Some were even paid off.

The Cherokee back east got into trouble. People like Rolling Thunder and others who got involved in coming over to Europe and giving the wisdom of his very special prophecy to the European people were involved in the disinformation scam.

MW: Some of these "highly moral" spiritual figureheads of which we have been speaking must know what they are doing and really are not very moral at all. Do you have clear instances of major failings they have - can you dish the dirt?

TC: I think the very specific strand of Racism which they give out is one of the worst things they say or do. It comes out in claims of authority over whites. They say things like whites should not be allowed to handle crystals or that we are incapable of handling crystals and we can set off spiritual accidents. They say that whites shouldn't own this fetish or that fetish - by this they mean things like pipes or that whites shouldn't run sweat lodges or dance with a feather. They say that we are spiritual underlings and there will be a backfire if we do some of these things. They were claiming that whites are the inferior race and that they are the higher race. They feel that whites should line up and pay them for these spiritual things and only Indians should be allowed to do them.

That's one ugly element. Another is their contradictory messages in their philosophies about racial harmony. Many people preach the rainbow prophecy which says that all four colours would come together and be as one - so this is a clear contradiction to the statements we are hearing from elsewhere. Some say that the world is falling apart and that it is only the white people that are causing it, with technology and industrial pollution as the enemy.

There were even certain Indians who liked going around preaching the doom and gloom and then blaming the white people for it because they thought this was humorous and got a kick out of it.

To be fair the real Indians back home on the tribal reservations are really a different calibre and not like this at all. They have honesty and moral fibre. It's a shame that these new age huxters have got the limelight and have defined what the New Age is supposed to be.

MW: Do you believe that there is any spirituality to these new age huxters - or should none of their stories be listened to - after all we do pollute the earth, perhaps they have a point.

TC: It's an interesting point - it could be a case of a worm that catches fish. The ecological problems that we face have certainly been misunderstood and not addressed properly. Put on a spiritual level I think that there is good in the green or ecological movement. I think that the Indian image, whoever is engineering it, does touch a chord perhaps even though the image is still made up.

I think part of the core belief of responsibility to the earth does have value, after you have shrugged off the personal claims and racism, is that we are indeed spiritually related to the earth. This is a profound message. We don't need invading aliens, or changes in our DNA or a higher vibration in our development to see the fundamental truth is that we are connected to the Earth, whatever dubious way that this message has come to us.

MW: So when we see press releases by seemingly official sounding organisations like the Hopi Independent Nation, should they be listened to or are there many such groups - all seemingly as important? Which ones should be listened to?

TC: Well the masses of Indians have not been listened to. The Hopi Independent Nation is not really the big issue because it has a small political aim. There is a Hopi Tribal Council which is the official political body and has some control over street lights and land leases to mining or mineral companies. They don't have much power. They have been corrupted and forced to sell land but at least a small amount of the money they get does trickle down and ends up going towards better schools and the like. These organisations are very vague.

MW: If you look at the prophecy as given by Qotshongva, and you look at his fathers prophecy then you see a clear change. Can you comment on some of the old style prophecy and the new style.

TC: If you want to get into the nuts and bolts, there is one watershed event where a high priest becomes a Christian and he marries his own personal conversion and the end of time of Christianity together and announces it publicly. He tells the other priests this and tells them that he has woven their beliefs and Christianity together and that Christianity is consistent with Hopi Indian belief. He also then says that in addition to all of these revelations that he is going to burn a main altar he controls and that by doing this he was doing everyone a big favour.

So they are all there and this man is about to burn the altar and there is a photographer who offers to pay the man 400 or 800 dollars for the altar and he priest refuses. Then he offers him 400 to 800 dollars just to take a single photograph of the altar. He refuses that. This was in 1920 and that was a huge sum of money. He turned this down and burned the altar and told everyone that he had done the "purifying" service that he was supposed to do.

Then another group lied about the altar destruction and made a duplicate altar. This group were in the background and there was a scramble to get power and they didn't surface until they formulated their version of the prophecy a few years later. So you can see that there were some people who weren't going to go along with the Christianisation of the Indian religion. They were going to go home with their marbles and play their non-Christian game. The non-Christian thing emerged again after a 40 year time lapse as the hippie and new age thing after it's gestation period. There was a split too with the way the different groups wanted to deal with government and how they were going to deal with modern education etc.

MW: These Indian religions certainly seem like as if they are on the move - they are not standing still or anything. Is there any religion behind these that are on the move which has been or is now - more stable?

TC: Yes there is. Most of the Indians who live in towns or in middle class areas don't seem to care so much or attend services but there are others who live in the traditional villages and they go to the traditional services or rituals. Some of the service have even been opened up to allow white people to watch. The snake dance where they take live rattle snakes and put them in their mouth by the hundreds without getting bitten, which they do every spring to wake up the earth, they don't do anymore. So they are a little tamer than they were and they don't have the power invested as much as they used to. I think they are just hanging on and it's a bit truncated.

MW: You mentioned about the Hopi Indians going to United Nations. What did they do?

TC: That was one of their big projects that they told to the whites. It came from the 1947 made up story that they were looking for the house of glass or house of mica. They claimed that they had a vision of the United Nations building with it's windows and needed to speak to it's leaders. They also said that they had to do it at a certain appointed time. They said that they could go there and be turned away a number of times. They thought this would happen as late as the end of the 1960's. There were several factions who knew about this and they were all clambering for the next trip and who was going to speak etc.

I was with one group of what were seen as apprentice Hopi Indian prophecy groups and they had an idea to take a Tibetan Bowl and play this at the United Nations. They played it in one of the side rooms of the United Nations as it happens. Somebody like the Secretary General of the United Nations at the end of this was due to come and receive the bowl. So because of this, at about the same time, there were people who then started to say that the Tibetans were connected with the Hopis and they had matching prophecies with a force that was going to transform the planet. They said the energies between the two groups were somehow analogous.

So there were various trips made by different groups on different years to the United Nations. Then some groups gave up and some said that they had changed their mind and they were going to go and try again the next year. So their disorganised exploits get a bit comical frankly with competing claims of being the "last knock on the door"

MW: I understand some of these groups turn up at conferences and ask to be allowed to speak.

TC: Sometimes they pretend they were asked to speak by God. Most of the time they don't ask to speak because in the US these Hopi Indians are very hot property on the UFO circuit. In the last 10 years I think the Indian input into the UFO community has gone up ten fold, with their claims of "special" knowledge of the aliens in the same way as they claimed "special" knowledge of purifying forces and the end of time. They have more than kept up with the recent trends.

MW: It sounds fine for the Hopi Indians to claim all these connections with other religions like the Tibetans but what do the Tibetans have to say about all of this.

TC: Well you have the same situation with the Tibetans as you do with the Hopi Indians. You have about five million Tibetans which America has fluffed up to a figure of nine million whereas in India you have the refugees which number five hundred thousand and these are the ones who do most of the talking. There are insider cult elites who get together to decide what their new by-line is going to be. There, as it happens, some highly groomed Tibetans who have visited the Hopi Indian reservations and it is these who claim to have the special knowledge. These people do go out to the reservations and they go along with the gag and build these special relationships.

MW: Where is all of this leading and what is your advice.

TC: Well I am kind of a strange bird. When I came into these things in 1969 I assumed that I was going to see them tell the truth about Peyote and it's fulfilment of a prophecy of a new church. I thought that they would tell the truth about the prophecies and so I was prepared to move forward back then. Now I am over here in Europe to tell people about Peyote and show people that he is an alien and sometimes comes in the form of a craft, that he affects our mentality and that he is involved in crop circles. I want to find out more about who the new characters on the scene are. What I would like to see is more discernment in the UFO and Crop Circle world and that people take more of a keen look at all these Indians who are coming over here with a story especially for the crowds. I am working for the people. I think we need to be a bit mature.

MW: Interesting though that you say things about the Peyote plant and how it is a character and an alien and it makes UFOs and Crop Circles. Is this a personal theory, or is it a universally accepted one - for you could be accused by the Indians of twisting their plant folklore around.

TC: Well it depends on the Indian you are speaking to. Some would say that Peyote has nothing to do with these things and that the new church is not here yet. I think it is fairly clear from the early prophecies within the 1800's that somewhere in the future the Indians would get some new dispensation or some new church but that also was also going to affect whites in a whole new way.

Well crop circles are the strongest expression of that I am aware of, and they couldn't argue with me on that one. If we are talking about their own traditions, however, the Indians are probably more expert on their history than I. So you might find some disagreements. However the influence at the Peyote religion, which is Christian by the way, is fairly new - just since about 1880; and in fact many tribes were suspicious of Peyote as a new thing and though it might be in conflict with their older traditions. So Peyote is a whole new ball game and not really all that traditional. So much of my opinion is personal but I would rather go stand in the crop circles and argue about crop circles than enter a tepee and talk about Indian traditions.

I will say that the new crop circle at Barbury Castle with 6 crescents forming a whirling spiral is more Peyote with "his" {Peyote personified as a human male - Ed} crescent altar form fulfilling true Hopi Indian prophecy about alien prophecies.

FORTEAN UNCONVENTION CONFERENCE REVIEW

FORTEAN TIMES UNCONVENTION
97 - A WEEKEND OF THE WONDROUS
SATURDAY 19TH AND 20TH APRIL 1997

BY CHRIS FOWLER

On Friday 18th April I set out from Cardiff to London by coach to stay with my brother and also attend my first Fortean Times UnConvention, as they are called. Due to the 'tongue in cheek' attitude of the Fortean Times I was expecting this conference to be quite different to the many others I have attended over the last few years which have been organised by such pro UFO groups as Quest International.

SATURDAY

I arrived early and after queuing outside with many others I made my way into the venue which was The Institute of Education in Bedford Way West London. Unlike the other conferences I have attended, there were two main lecture halls where talks were going on simultaneously. One hall had speakers (such as the Reverend Lionel Fanthorpe off 'Fortean TV') talking about many different Fortean subjects such as Vampires, Freaks, Screaming Skulls and Lake Monsters, and the other hall mainly had speakers talking about UFO related subjects (though some were not related to UFOs at all), this was the one I was interested in due to my own interest in UFOs.

The reason I had decided to attend the conference was that some of the speakers I had not seen talk before, in person anyway. These included Budd Hopkins, who was to talk about his abduction research and his new book 'Witnessed', and who you could describe as the father of UFO sceptics Philip Klass from Washington D.C. Also speaking in this hall was the editor of 'Saucer Smear' Jim Moseley, and Paul Devereaux from the UK (who is now a resident in the US). Paul Devereaux is the researcher who theorises that most real UFOs are not craft from an unknown origin, but in fact plasma lights that are created by the earth. His work was recently the subject of an episode of 'Equinox' on Channel 4 titled 'Identified Flying Objects'. The conference was also a good chance for me to get photographs of these people and also to get my copy of Witnessed signed by Budd, which I did (It's always nice to get books signed by the authors).

BUDD HOPKINS

Budd came on after Richard Wiseman's very amusing talk on the legendary Indian Rope Trick, which it appears was a complete hoax. Budd only had one hour to talk, so his presentation was not as good as some that I had seen on video because he had to condense it severely and only described the details of the Brooklyn Bridge abduction case briefly. He showed examples of physical landing traces caused by UFOs and many photographs of marks that have been left on abductees bodies, some of which were quite severe. He also showed some of the drawings of the UFO involved in the Brooklyn Bridge case which are printed in the new book, these looked much better in colour.

Budd Hopkins

PHILIP KLASS

Next on was Philip Klass, I unfortunately missed part of his talk as I was busy talking to people myself (as usually happens at such events!) though I caught the last half during which he spent a lot of time debunking a UFO Radar case. This appeared to go on for quite a while and was a bit boring. I was surprised in a way that he wasn't as severe as I thought he would be in his debunking attempts. He made quite a few jokes, some even about himself, and he said that he would be convinced about UFOs if someone took close up video of one, not mentioning that footage not far from this already exists. He had a bit of a moan about him being edited out of TV specials on UFOs that much to his dislike ended up being pro UFO. I found this funny as he now can get an idea of what it's like to be treated as pro Ufologists have been for years! Boo Hoo Phil! Also he made a statement that he did not believe that the Bentwaters UFO events were real as he said that the people involved were users of Marijuana which people smoke to hallucinate, therefore they can not be trusted!! At the end of his talk he said that he would love to get abducted and does not fear such an event happening. What he did say he feared was being abducted by a beautiful female humanoid who would try and take his sperm the old fashioned way, this he said would cause problems in his marriage. This went down real well with most of the audience.

During his question time a friend of mine named Dave Morgan asked what he thought of the undeniable evidence in the form of video from Mexico. Klass' answer to this was that the UFO sightings in Mexico are due to balloons on the ends of string that children have being video taped! Such a weak argument against the Mexican UFOs is laughable. When Dave said that he thought this subject was too serious to be laughed at he himself was laughed at and even called a  by one individual in the audience. Afterwards I confronted this person who had insulted Dave and gave him a right earful. I suggested that if he thought it was all a big funny joke and not serious in any way then he better stop using planes as many pilots world-wide have seen UFOs. Pilots are obviously clowns in his view. I told him that it would be a great joke if he was in a plane that got hit by a UFO just like what happened over Mexico City on July 28th 1994. Attitudes like this person's to me are just as much of a mystery as UFOs themselves. Is it denial or just pure stupidity??

JIM MOSELEY

Jim Moseley was the next person to take the stage, I again missed the first part of his talk due to doing so myself and caught the end of him talking dirt about Ufology. He went down very well with the audience once more due to him making a joke about the whole subject. During the end of his talk he stated his view that the Gulf Breeze UFOs were a hoax citing the incident of the individual named Tommy Smith who claimed to have helped Ed Walters fake his photos (see issue 12 of Truth Seekers). Much of what the debunkers say, just like what they accuse Ufolgists of, is not based on proof. I would argue that the current evidence for UFOs constitutes more proof that UFOs are real than the debunkers evidence in such cases as Gulf Breeze proves that they are not.

Jenny Randles was the next speaker to take to the stage, having seen Jenny talk before on a number of occasions I chose to give her talk a miss and I came into the hall to catch the last part of her talk and her short question time. She had a bit of a dig about an unnamed UFO author getting an extremely large advance for a UFO book (over £30,000!) and said that now is the best time to write a book about UFOs! It is a pretty ridiculous amount compared to the £1500 she said she had just got for a book. She also had a dig a Nick Pope (was the last dig aimed at him?) and the MoD saying that contrary to what Nick says, there does seem to be some sort of covert UFO investigation going on in the MoD who send out people to visit and intimidate witnesses. This is a point that I agree with Jenny on completely. Nick was also present at the conference (though not speaking) and I had a chat with him about some recent findings of ours that suggest that some other department in the MoD is involved in UFOs, Nick just didn't appear to be that interested as usual!

Paul Devereux

PAUL DEVEREUX

Paul Devereux was the next speaker on, his talk was basically about his theory that UFOs are earth lights caused by stress in the earth, which as a result generates plasma balls that hover in the sky. Paul has travelled the world investigating earth light phenomenon and has had the opportunity to visit Mexico, the site of some of the most intense UFO activity ever, and had met with the respected investigative journalist Jaime Maussan who has been investigating the UFOs in his country since 1991. Paul declared the events in Mexico as being a load of crap and he knew all about them having been there. After his talk my friend Dave Morgan, a person who has been closely following the UFO events in Mexico, confronted Paul with some points about the Mexican UFOs. We then found out that in fact Paul did not know "all about the Mexican UFOs", even though he had just made a sweeping statement in front of a large audience that he did. He even admitted that some of the videos he had seen from Mexico he could not explain, there was no such statement during his talk! He seemed to get quite irritated and stated something along the lines of if everyone makes a big fuss that the Mexico UFOs are craft, then people may end up like the recent 'Heaven's Gate' cult who committed mass suicide because they believed that there was a UFO travelling with the comet Hale-Bopp. Is this what Paul thinks of serious UFO researchers and people who are interested in the subject? I hope not.

He argued that the July 11th 1991 eclipse UFO over Mexico City was not a UFO and said that the UFO in relation to the stars visible on the footage in the background did not move. This is not the case and I told him that if he had seen the latest video on the Mexican sightings (Voyagers of the Sixth Sun) he would also realise this, he said he had not, so much for him knowing all about the Mexico UFOs. When I mentioned to him the July 28th 1994 mid air UFO/aeroplane collision he said that this was a plasma ball, tell that to the pilots Paul! I do not dispute that there is probably a genuine earth light phenomenon, but it is obvious that this is not the explanation for all UFO sightings, especially when they consist of silver disc shaped objects on video that reflect sunlight and turn up on Radar. Like we have no solid proof that these UFOs are alien vehicles, Paul has no solid proof for his earth lights theory. It seems that he is quite opposed to the idea of intelligently controlled UFOs.

All in all I had a good weekend there in London, the conference was well organised and very well attended, though what I probably enjoyed about it most was seeing friends from around the country who I usually only get to see at such events, I also made some new friends there which is always nice. As for these sceptics (such as the man in the audience who I gave an earful to), it seems that most of them are not true sceptics as they are totally unaware of a lot of evidence for UFOs and have not checked things out properly. The reaction to such evidence by the ones who are aware seems to suggest to me that once again the problem is not with the evidence, it's with the people. Will they ever change?, the answer is probably not.

The convention

A mini feature by Matthew Williams

Symbols appear in many forms. The most obvious forms of symbolism is that used in art although we often forget that letters of the alphabet are indeed symbols. The art of placing a hidden meaning behind a symbol is the domain not just of artists but esoteric masters. To understand what we see in civilised everyday life we should study the hidden language of symbols. When we do this we see more in the design of buildings and in everyday art than we ever knew was there previously. Sometimes this is good and sometimes this is bad; for the secret schools have hidden their messages in places and positions which control our lives, such as on money and in churches and buildings of importance such as government offices...

What harm could there be behind the use of symbols you may ask. Well nothing so direct it would seem at first. Advertisers use symbology to subliminally induce us to buy things. There is a very well tuned science behind this and symbols need not be obvious to the eye. Even the use of colour and placement also have meaning. Advertisers today use colour analysts to advise on effects of colour on mood so that the emotions of a person can be affected through the use of highly controlled imagery.

Magicians (the real type) and esoteric students know the potential of symbols. For them symbols represent a way of hiding secret messages which can then only be understood by the initiated, or for hiding secrets which they believe represent the way the universe works or can be manipulated via magic. Much of this symbolism comes into the domain of numerology and the belief that certain numbers have certain meanings in life and powers and energies which represent life in its many varied forms - from energies to plant life and from animals to gods. Angles too play a role in magic symbolism and the angular values in a shape could be linked to a date or time or numerical value of the things you are trying to influence.

Magical students will often imply that a symbol carries its own power and can attract energies and change the balances of the universe according to the design. Some refer this to as "form energy". This is the principle behind talismanic magic and also behind what I term the "mechanism" of magic; this is where magic students will give close study to symbols and learn their power, then in magic the act of conjuration or invocation in a magical ceremony will then use the learned symbology to help the magical student concentrate specifically on a task in front of him/her. Early magical symbolism has eastern roots going back even to Babylonian times.

A question which I have asked myself many times and have never had answered properly by any esoteric student is, how does one know that these symbols and representations are the truest representations there can be. I am caused to ask if the earliest civilisations did have knowledge of the universe that far exceeds our knowledge today and if this is how the symbology was passed down. History shows us many interesting artefacts which do not fit into many a historians idea of how the past should have been. Some of these artefacts include technology which seems out of place and some represent knowledge which seems well up by today's standards. Certainly it looks as if when it comes to knowledge of the stars, we are just catching up.

One interesting point about symbols is that they, like music, can transgress the boundaries and constrictions of language differences. Symbols may be a universal language and one is left to ask, would the first communication between earth and an alien race take place through gestures - another form of symbolism.

There is a higher form of symbolic representation than that of basic symbols which lie flat on pieces of paper. Magical students use 3 dimensions to work their magic in with 3D models of shapes. The work in this field shows amazing consistencies between universal placements of planets and stars on the big scale down to the placement of particles inside atoms. All have a 3D form and shape. Alchemists knew this and ascribed shapes as representations of atoms - something which chemists to today. The big question is can we ever find a universal rule which fits the infinitely complex world of atoms through galaxies. To find this connection would mean to find a key to the Universe which could unlock the ability to predict future events. Scientists are looking for answers to this question every day and symbols and multi dimensional models are an integral part of their research.

I do have my worries though. I worry that some people, in a very secret esoteric way, may already have many of the answers to many universal questions and may be keeping this information from us for bad reasons. My philosophy is fore warned is fore armed. What is out there to be learned is best learned. Magic is a reality to me and we can not be complacent to its use. A first stage in someone's interest in understanding these things is to look at symbols and try to see why they hold power.

Here are some tests to prove that people ascribe feelings and powers to symbols.

Look at these three basic shapes. A circle and square and a triangle. Take a moment now to allow yourself to feel what the shapes do for you emotionally and then how you think they operate, what they do?

This may sound like a strange thing to do but please indulge yourself.

PHOTOS: Right upper, Dollar bill shows many Freemason elements. Note that as opposed to tribity triangles all sides are nor equal - so out of balance - a possible alignment with evil???

CIRCLE

The circle is often reported as having a sense of completeness, depth, infinity and is often used as a representation for God. The infinity comes from the shape having no beginning or no end. People say that they feel at ease with this shape; Circles are supposed to remind us of our mothers face when we are newly born. This is another reason why we have a special connection with them. The sun being circular and giving us warmth is another.

SQUARE

The square is a more complex shape and so does not foster quite such warm emotion but represents order and stability, to some it represents earthly things and the material realm we live in. Objects with sharp angles are never quite so pleasing to the eye. In symbolic terms right angles are supposed to represent evil energy, but you would have to make your own mind up on this.

TRIANGLE

The triangle is often felt to have an energy of motion and is often very demanding of attention or energy - perhaps this is why it is used a warning sign in many countries. It represents balance if all three sides of the triangle are equal length as in this triangle. Balance is a key in this symbol, as in religious terms it represents the Holy Trinity ie. The Father, The Son and the Holy Ghost. Three also means mind, body and spirit.

If the triangle point is upwards the symbol represents the male aspect and also ascent towards heaven. If the tip faces down the aspect is feminine and connects heaven to earth. The triangle is also used to represent the elements of Fire, Air, Water and Earth. Male triangles are Fire which is a potent force, female triangles are water and a more passive element. A triangle also represents the second most basic shape - the circle being the first - as it contains only three sides. This makes it the most basic rudiment of power. If you agree with any of the above statements then you are probably an average person with normal reactions. These links between these basic symbols and our feelings run deep.

COLOURS

We can try the same test with colours now. Imagine Black, White, Red then Blue. What do you feel?

Black is reported as being a lonely colour, deep and with much space. Some people find it a unhappy colour as it seems devoid of all life. Some people are frightened of black in the same way as they may be frightened of the dark. Black is seen in the west as being a colour of death whilst those in the east see it as a representation of time. Egyptians saw it as the colour of rebirth.

White is said to embody the concept of purity or virginity. It seems bright and seems to contain knowledge and information - hence the term Illumination. White can also be a cold colour as with Red is obviously the colour of fire and warmth. Red also signified strength and movement. Red can mean energy of our blood running in our veins. Seeing red is a sign of anger and so red is often seen as the colour of war. Red personifies the masculine principle and this connects with Mars and the upwards pointing triangle which is also a Mars symbol.

Blue could be said to be a cool colour and is attributed with wisdom and intellect. Romans and Greeks aligned blue as the colour of Venus. With the downward facing triangle which means water - blue is the colour of water and so is a feminine colour.

Again it is easy to see how colour symbolism works. More complex colour alignments are dealt with in specialist books on the subject.

COMPLEX SYMBOLS

To look at more literal representation of a secret society we can look at the solid structure shape of a pyramid, obelisk and eye; for these are three representations used by the Freemasons, a secret society which controls much of our lives from behind the scenes. Bear in mind that the symbology used by Freemasons is supposed to be secret and is often hidden in many places. If not hidden, then used in such a way so it will not normally be understood or questioned.

To Freemasons and others the Pyramid represents a movement through spiritual attainment. The tip represents the threshold with God. It also has a concentrating force from all of the energy in it's base provides power to the tip. Remove the base and you remove the power. Society is organised like a pyramid, with its rulers at the top relying on the power of the people below to support them. Some see the pyramid as a reflection of the four balance elements of earth, air, fire and water on a solid base which is square. Many people would like to see a circular organised society structure instead of the pyramidal structure which dominates our world

Americans use the symbology of the pyramid on the dollar and in the "Seal Of The United States". This is because all founding fathers of the US (Those who signed the declaration of independence) were Freemasons bar one. Why then do the Freemasons want to de-cap the pyramid then and what is the significance of this symbolic statement. Do they want to remove the pyramids power or corrupt it?

PYRAMID

If we imagine a circle that represents God, to cut it in half would create a semi-circle which as an uncompleted or non-balanced shape which would represent Satan or Evil. If we look at a pyramid, which embodies symbolism of power, elements, ascension and spirituality and we cut it in half we have cut off the ability to reach the spirituality. The upper part of the pyramid floating above the cut-pyramid may represent an unattainable level of spirituality, or that we are not meant to be that high.

In Freemasonry the goal is to become a complete and correct part of the order of the universe. On earth a Freemason symbolically sees himself as a stone brick (known as an Ashlar). A rough Ashlar will not fit into any space of a uniform structure, so one must be disciplined and uniform in order to fit in - one must be the same as everyone else. Freemasons talk of being "square" for this reason. It is put forward by the Freemasons that the symbology of the floating pyramid (see previous page) above the cut pyramid means that the pyramid is incomplete and that there is still work to be done. This may mean that in life or society the Freemasons busy themselves in doing work which will bring about uniformity or balance. This is where speculation comes to just how far Freemason will go in their search for perfection in society. I believe that there is a behind the scenes push for a One World Government as Freemasons operate at the highest levels of government and Royal families. This is how they change laws and policies to allow transition into more unified "One World" government.

Middle Right: More obelisk magic after the new Czech Freemason Prime Minister decides to cap his obelisk with a pyramid. Perhaps the work of the Freemasons is now "completed" in the Czech Republic, now that they are joining the European Union - One World Government...

Little known is the fact that the shape left behind after you de-cap a pyramid is known as a trapezoid and is the main symbol used in Church of Satan / Order of the Trapezoid.

Also notice that the eye is illuminated which means that the level of spirituality or knowledge that this person/being/god or secret society has, is greater than the larger portion of the pyramid (the public) would know. Once you can see how the symbology works you can understand how the Freemasons are trying to rub our noses in the fact that they know more than we do - and they aren't helping us by telling either!

OBELISK

The symbology used all over the world for male ascension power is the obelisk. This represents the phallus and is pointing upwards towards heaven. This is a representation of male power to push into the realm of the Gods. The Washington monument obelisk is a classic example of a Freemason designed structure. It represents the male nature of politics in the US and Secret Societies connected with politics. In magical terms the placement - in a straight line facing east - is also important. This part of American history and symbolism is lost to most people who simply view the monument as a nice piece of artwork. Strange coming from such a religious country with harsh views on occultism - which is exactly what the monument represents.

THE EYE

Symbolically an eye or oval shape represents a doorway which takes the outside world to the inner. This gateway can work the other way too and lets the inner world come out through the eye. Similar to childbirth. The power of the eye is great in terms of hypnosis. In pagan cultures the eye represents God and in modern cultures the eye represents wisdom. The oval represents female genitalia. In Egyptian culture the eye represented Horus, the lord of the skies., which was one of many Egyptian gods.

The eye in Freemason terms represents the All Seeing Eye of the creator who is "The Grand Architect of the Universe". Placed on the floating pyramid and considering the masons connection to the pyramids and even Egyptian Freemasonry, we could quite easily be given to deduce that the deity being worshipped by the Freemasons is in fact Horus. Dig deeper to the origins of Horus in earlier cultures and you can see the connection to the demon god Baal.

Right: Freemasonic ring showing compass and set square which is really a hidden sign for the Seal Of Solomon. The G stands for God which is interesting because Freemasonry claims to be a non-religious organisation. See the comparison to the Star Of David below.

THE STAR OF DAVID

The other symbol we see the freemasons use quite frequently is the Seal Of Solomon. This symbol is also used by Jewish religion. To Freemasons it represents balance in the universe - or as they put it "there must be darkness in light and light in darkness". Not everyone would wish to agree with this point as it seems to give power to negative concepts but perhaps they are right. You must decide.

The symbology used is of two triangles transposed over each other. This means balance of the two energies - masculine and feminine. It also is the balance of fire against water. Lastly the energy from earth to heaven and heaven to earth is balanced. However there is one more little known representation which is that of union between man and woman. As used in the Roman Catholic Church, symbology of chalice cup (vagina), fount (vagina) and temple candles (phallus - as I was to learn from Alesh in his interview this month) these symbols represent sexual union between male and female and are brought together in this way inside the church! This would mean that Freemasonry along with the Catholic Church is a fertility cult. The worship of ancient deities such as Osiris, who was a fertility goddess would confirm this. One would not expect to find this sort of occult emblems in a church but we do - not so much in British churches but certainly in European.

HIDDEN

The symbology of the freemasons is hidden in many places and one of the cleverest ways they have hidden the Seal of Solomon is in their use of the compass and set square. This is the universal emblem of Freemasons and you can easily see the comparisons between the two symbols.

The use of this symbology on the dollar and other money in the U.S. is obvious but do we have similar symbology hidden on U.K. money? The short answer is yes, but it is harder to find. Here we have made it easy for you by enlarging notes and showing you the areas to look on. (next page)

Why the use of such symbols on money in particular is so important to Freemasons is not directly apparent to me, unless they feel that money requires some sort of magical power. If you were wondering why the 6 sided star - Seal Of Solomon has six sides, six being a number of negative and evil, there is an alleged reason so we are told. There is supposed to be a seventh side which is invisible and transcends the spiritual. This sounds like rubbish to me. Maybe this is the reason that it appears in so many places - because it is an evil number that is misrepresented by those who hide inside secret societies and behind apocrypha (hidden knowledge). It is possible however that the real meanings are obscured and that these symbols are not bad after all, though I doubt it.

One interesting fact about six sided stars is that when you measure the sides they are all equal and the sides also equal the radius - which is an odd fact. It also is a symbol of great complexity because it repeats inside itself into infinity - see illustration - no matter how many times you draw it you will always end up with a six sided shape to start the next star. Keep your eyes open for instances of secret symbols in society.

We are also interested in hearing from people who find such instances and we want to publish these in the magazine. There will be more on symbolism and basics of sacred geometry in future editions of Truthseekers.

LEFT: The six sided star in the hexagon repeats itself and is copied into infinity. The concept of balance and infinity runs through this symbol. Note how it appears as the hexagon base in certain depictions but is always hiding the true representation of the two triangles underneath.

Note this is an eight pointed star which can conform to partial Star Of David configurations. It is illuminating the circular area which is the watermark of the Queen. The illumination that is given is in form of a triangle and the six pointed star is at the peak of the triangle.

Gullibles Travels

by Hugh Thomas, Secretary of Bristol Humanists

They, say there was once a man who went all around the world, believing everything he was told wherever he went. When he came home, he wrote a book about his experiences. It was called Gullible's Travels.

Such a character is Matthew Williams, a personable young Welshman who's a modern day Gullible if ever there was one. Matthew was the visiting speaker recently at the Bristol-based British Flying Saucer Bureau's monthly meeting. Despite the grandiose name, they're a small group of armchair urologists, sleeveless-jumper wearing pensioners stuck in a 1950s time warp.

Unlike the stalwarts of BFSB however, Matthew is an exponent of the new wave of British Ufology. For the new breed, the subject began around 1990. Matthew is an evangelising disciple of modern UFO messiah Timothy Good: now there is a grand name for a guru if ever there was one. Good is the professional musician who's written a series of fat best-sellers on Ufology. He tours the country's halls preaching to the nose-ringed faithful at eleven quid a throw, telling them The Government Knows About UFOs. Crashed ships, alien autopsies, off-worlders in the UN: you name it, he believes it, and he wants us to be true believers too.

Believing things is the hallmark of the new urologist: no place here for scepticism, healthy or otherwise. In the course of his evening's presentation, young Matthew intimates that he believes not only in flying saucers and alien abductions, but also in out-of-body experiences, clairvoyance, spiritualism, telepathy, ghosts, and probably a few other things I've forgotten too. Later I take advantage of a lull in the question session after his talk to ask: is there any fringe belief at all to which he does not subscribe?

Yes, crop circles, he says. He reckons a lot of the experts in that are only in it for the money. Perhaps catching an uneasy shifting in some of the audience - after all, we are near Wiltshire here - he modifies his position. OK, he says, there probably was a phenomena (sic) there originally, but it's now hidden by all the mess made by money grabbers and hoaxers. Ah, that's better - you can hear the audience relax again. They can keep believing. For a moment he was sounding like one of those terrible sceptical people, those cynics, people without an open mind.

Matthew's own belief began when he was driving from his Mid Glamorgan home one night and received a welcome in the hillside from a strange triangular light across the valley. Losing sight of it, he didn't even bother to look in that direction on the way home again. A week later though, it all came back to him "like a bucket of water being thrown over me", and that was it. He looked up the Good Book and was duly hooked. Matthew talks of his life before UFOs, doing handbrake turns in supermarket car parks with his mates. Life had no meaning, he says. Now it has. He talks of coming out of darkness into light, and he edits a magazine called Truth Seekers' Review.

Again I try my luck with a question. Given the foregoing and other signs - the meeting is in a Friends' Meeting House and he stands in front of us well groomed in his beat suit, like one of those Mormon missionaries - has it occurred to him that what he's caught Lip in here is actually a religious movement?

Matthew is unfazed. He hints that these things are all connected. UFOs, God... life, the universe, everything. A woman in the audience pipes up. Does he realise someone is guiding him? He has a golden aura round his head. Oh yes, he nods, she is not the first to say this.

Talking to me later, one local urologist is frank about how he got into the field. "I lost my faith in religion when I was young, I started looking round for some explanation for how things are, and found it in the flying saucers." An older couple, until recently happily touring crop circles as their main Summer months pastime, relate a similar tale. They got into crop circles after being professional wrestling fans then it was all debunked by the News of the World. He cheerfully admits to a long line of disappointments, traced right back to discovering as a child that Santa Claus wasn't real. His wife says she was brought up a convent girl.

But back to Matthew. He spends much of his time now hanging round the perimeter fences at West Country military sites like Rudloe Manor, hoping to get arrested by the MOD police like his hero Good. Matthew and his chums are convinced that it's all going on in the underground tunnels below Wiltshire: the Truth is Down There. He distributes a map to the audience at the end of his talk. He'd even hired a light aircraft to fly over the place to help him draw it, "unusual air shaft buildings" and all.

And if you're still not convinced, there's the evidence of the strange people seen walking dogs around the military base. Strange, because they're all wearing similar clothes: green wellies, green wax jackets - almost as if they were all issued from the same store.

BFSB's members are duly impressed by Matthew. Crowding round him at the end like teeny boppers, they snapped Truth Seekers' Review like there's no tomorrow.

Gullible? You'd better believe it.

What do you think? Write and let us know and we will pass your comments on to the author who we think was very arrogant and narrow minded to twist our work like this...
